AUTOMOBILE SALES reflect high or low American prosperity. Therefore, the country in general, automobile agents particularly, are interested in the opening of the automobile exposition, in New York city, with 150 per cent more visitors, the first day, than on the opening day one year ago. Automobile men are to be congratulated on having not only better automobiles, but also better "showmanship" than ever.

It is important to have a good thing, also to make other people want it through the right kind of advertising and display.

The Hollander, Marinus Van Der Lubbe, the 24-year-old stonemason, set fire to the German Reichstag building, burned it down, didn't kill anybody. That is as though somebody had burned down the Capitol at Washington.

Yesterday, in Leipzig, Van Der Lubbe's head was cut off. The details will interest future civilizations.

The guillotine blade that drops automatically was used in place of a headsman with axe or sword, and dressed in evening clothes. There was ceremony enough to satisfy German ideas as to etiquette in chopping off a head.

Van Der Lubbe, who confessed scornfully and refused to say anything more, was executed by the guillotine operator, Herr Goebler, "dressed in evening clothes, wearing white gloves." Van Der Lubbe climbed silently to the guillotine platform. Goebler pressed the button, Van Der Lubbe's head was in a basket, half-full of sawdust, before the clergyman had finished his prayer. The executioner called out in a loud voice, "Justice has been done." The prison bell rang, to let the people know.

Only thirty seconds before the state's attorney had said, "I surrender you to the executioner."

France and Russia conclude a friendly trade agreement, despite the fact that repudiated Czarist bonds owned in France amount to six thousand million dollars.

Europe sees in this trade agreement "an alliance against Germany and Japan." At present Europe is having enough nightmares without any reason.

Japan is reaching out, naturally, in Asia; and Europe thinks that, next, Japan will fly around the world to gobble up all of Europe and America, beginning with America.

Italy warns us, "Japan can reach the Philippines and the American places in four days, while the American fleet requires twelve days to reach Manila." Japan, despising the white race for their materialistic outlook, are bent on a triumph for their race." Furthermore, "Americans fighting Japan must fight about 5000 miles away from the nearest American base."

If America ever fights it will fight by submarine, airplane, explosive bombs and poison gas, and only in self-defense, and one or two thousand additional miles will make no difference.

However, Japan will not fight the United States for two reasons: First, Japan is intelligent, and nearly well-informed Japanese know what the United States is. Second, the Japanese could not win.

Japan is successful with her commercial penetration in Abyssinia, where she has obtained a "free zone" territory for agitating cotton and other raw materials.

That bothers Italy but it does not bother the United States.

Washington, D. C., capital of our partly wet, partly dry country, would, by an act of Congress, "become extremely liberal," which means that you could buy what you wanted and drink it when and where you liked. You would not have to buy a bottle of whiskey, take it home, put it under the mattress, and see how quickly you could get rid of it.

They tried the plan, "Take it home in a bottle and drink it all up quickly." in New Zealand, but it didn't work.

Liberia, African republic, with more than one million inhabitants, is ruled by only twelve thousand citizens, forming a "civilized" ruling class, all descendants of former American slaves.

Liberia's constitution is based on that of the United States, and the chosen "twelve thousand," considering themselves the only civilized ones in Liberia, refuse to let the other one million vote or have anything to say about the government.

That plan is dangerous. Boers in South Africa decided that they alone were fit to govern South Africa. The British thought otherwise, and now the Transvaal is British.

The best plan everywhere is to interest as many as possible in keeping things as they are. That applies to the U. S. A.

CROWD STORMS DR. WYNEKOOP TRIAL

AGED DOCTOR CARRIED IN CHAIR TO COURT

By DOROTHY DUCAS
International News Service Staff Correspondent

Chicago, Jan. 11 (INS)—Dr. Alice Lindsay Wynekoop came to trial for murder this morning with the shouts of a turbulent crowd ringing in her ears.

The 62-year-old woman physician who, the state charges, killed her daughter-in-law, Rheta Gardiner Wynekoop, on an operating table in her home, was such a drawing-card at the Cook County courthouse that several thousand men and women, denied admission, howled their disappointment through the corridors.

The sound struck the woman doctor full in the face as she was assisted into court from the jail, behind the courthouse. It struck—and glanced off, like paper pellets against a granite statue.

CROWD STORMS COURT

The crowds pushed and shouted for 40 minutes before they calmed down. Most of them, avid-eyed, had waited since 7 a. m. for a glimpse of the steel-nerved grandmother, who is charged with murder.

At 10:30 a. m. Chief Bailiff James G. Gabriel issued orders excluding the public from the fifth floor while the trial was in progress, to avoid a repetition of the near-riot. Dr. Wynekoop did not seem even to note the sudden outer silence. Perhaps silence has become her bosom companion.

It was not a lasting silence. The crowds would not go. Their ghoulish glee rose three times to crescendo, causing the judge finally to

Girl Saved From Ice in River

Like a fly on a window pane, Fireman Caeser Mikolajewski crept across thin ice on Muddy river lagoon behind fire alarm headquarters in the Fens today to affect the heroic rescue of a drowning child after two other firemen had nearly drowned.

Mikolajewski, too, nearly drowned but he saved Dorothy O'Neill, 10, of 52 Westland ave., Back Bay, who is at City Hospital suffering from immersion, but recovering.

CROWD CHEERS RESCUER

A big crowd watched the rescue attempt and cheered the hero, who stands six feet, one inch in his stocking feet, blushes easily and is a brother of Joseph Mikolajewski, assistant city censor.

He changed his clothes, said:

"Aw, gee, the other guys did more than I did," and went back to work.

He was one of a group who saw the child break through the ice while 100 feet from shore. Fireman Daniel Foley started on a run and plunged through after going 30 feet. Fireman Thomas Kelley followed, and broke through after going 50 feet.

CREEPS OVER ICE

Mikolajewski shouted to Fireman Raymond Donegan, and Edward Corliss to get ladders and started out lying flat on his stomach, spread-eagled to distribute his 200 pounds. He crept inch by inch toward the hole where the child, her head just above water, clung to the ice.

As he reached the edge, he broke through. The child lost her hold and went down and he followed, grasped her, tried to touch bottom with his feet and failed.

Three ladders were being pushed out to him when he came up with the girl in his arms. He managed to grasp one and life the girl onto it. Then he climbed out and carried her to safety.

Kelley and Foley rescued themselves.

Jap Chief Predicts U. S. War

PLOT TO LOAD NEW RADIO ON POLICE

Backers of Two-Way System Busy; Hultman Making Tests

A deep-rooted suspicion that somebody is deliberately making Boston's new one-way police radio "look bad" in order to pave the way for a $300,000 two-way system caused Gen. Daniel Needham, state police head, and Police Commissioner Hultman to start a test of their own today.

The new test is being made at the request of Hultman, who, it was learned, shares the suspicion aired by himself and Needham's two-way system in the past.

Much of the delay and poor reception reported by the receivers equipped with receiving sets tuned to the state police broadcast is suspected to be the result of driving under elevated structures near hospitals where X-ray machines are in use and deliberately riding in "dead spots."

STATE POLICE TEST

The test being made by the State and city police heads is with a State police car, equipped with the same receiving model which Hultman ordered installed after being forced to act by Governor Ely.

The test began even as Hultman called for bids for the two-way system he has been planning on, with Gov. Ely closely watching the situation and, according to report, prepared to step in with a direct order for abandonment of the plan if the bids show it will be as costly as expected.

This cost, including necessary renewals of underground cables of the signal system, has been estimated in excess of $300,000.

HULTMAN DISAGREES

The cost of a complete one-way system, including the department's own broadcasting station, would be approximately $70,000, and in the opinion of Gen. Needham it would be pretty close to 98 per cent efficient, and just as efficient as the more costly two-way system.

Gen. Needham's opinion is said to reflect that of the Governor. It is not held by Hultman.

The state police head said, and is prepared to prove, that Boston could put its present one-way system, linked with the state police broadcasting station, and attain 75 per cent efficiency.

"I am confident a thorough and fair test will convince the most skeptical that the one-way system is practical and efficient," Gen. Needham said.

250 CWA'S PUT OUT BY POLICE

More than 250 CWA applicants were driven by police from the second floor of the Medford City building today after the men had stormed the welfare offices in protest of the announcement that men who had been employed on completed CWA projects would be re-employed before all other applicants.

The announcement was made by Milton W. Riley, employment registrar. He said that under a federal ruling men previously employed on the projects must be first on the list for employment. When the announcement was made the men went in a body to the welfare rooms.

They were ordered to leave by Mrs. Theresa Denis, chairman of the welfare, and on their refusal police were called.

CWA FRAUDS TO GO BEFORE U. S. JURY

Big Politician Named in Theft, Forgery; Mail Is Involved

Theft and forgery raised their heads today in what officials termed the worst scandal thus far barred in connection with the CWA administration in Boston.

As a result of the charges, involving an alleged misuse of the late franking privilege, the machinery of the federal government was turned loose on the investigation and speedy grand jury action was predicted.

The charges involve a well known political whose name was given by one of the job-seeking victims and then turned over, with other information, to United States Atty. Francis J. W. Ford and the postoffice inspectors' department.

According to the allegations, at least 100 of the CWA identification slips in triplicate, through which job seekers are assigned to projects, were stolen in the carrying out of the fraud, and government envelopes, which need no stamps and which are marked "Official Business," were also stolen.

HANNA'S NAME FORGED

In addition, it is alleged that the name of E. L. Hanna, national reemployment manager stationed at 100 Nashua st., has been forged to at least 60 of the job orders and that the names of job foremen on the slips weree orrect, indicating that someone in the plot had access to records of the local CWA projects.

Discovery of the fraud plot came, it was learned by the Boston Evening American today, through a young stonemason who believed that at last he had a job.

The man visited CWA headquarters at 49 Federal st. and complained that a foreman named Coughlin at the Albany st. city yards, where some stone work is being done, had refused to accept identification slips instructing him to report there for duty yesterday.

SO FORGED SLIPS

Coughlin's excuse for not accepting the slips was that the name of Hanna was printed instead of written, although Coughlin's name and the rest of the order were written out.

John H. Morris, in charge of the CWA legal department, and his assistant, Joseph McCue, notified John J. Power, CWA director of investigations, and he assigned investigators.

Hanna's office was communicated with, and then it was discovered that on file in that office were unforged identification slips, with the purported signature of Hanna badly scrawled on some and printed on others, and all not noticed in the rush.

Next the discovery was made that a block of 100 o fthe identification slips, in triplicate, had not been checked as sent out from the office, although the forgeries were from the block.

About half of the 60 job seekers whose names appeared on the slips have been working nearly a week, most of them on projects in the Navy Yard.

The job seekers were called in and questioned, while others came in voluntarily with complaints that other foremen were refusing the slips because of the faulty Hanna signature.

W. R. Hearst Discusses U.S.-Japanese Relations In New Year's Message

Under the heading, "War? Don't Repeat German's Blunder," the Japanese newspaper Hochi, in Tokio, printed a New Year message to the Japanese people from William Randolph Hearst. The message carried an explanatory introduction by the editor of Hochi, stating:

"America's newspaper king, publishing over 20 dailies and 10 magazines, wields powerful influence in journalism. He is well known in Japan for the fact that although sometimes he publishes articles against Japan, he himself is not anti-Japanese. It is the spirit of patriotism that prompts him to write strong editorials."

The text of Mr. Hearst's message follows:

Dr. Shiro Terada,
Managing Editor Hochi,
Tokio, Japan.

IT seems to me that there are no countries in the world which have better reason to maintain friendly relations and greater opportunity to maintain friendly relations than Japan and the United States of America.

All that is necessary is for both nations to carry on friendly commercial, financial and diplomatic relations with each other, and apart from that for each nation to mind its own business.

Japan is 5000 miles away from the United States on the edge of Asia and if Japan wants to dominate the Asiatic continent that is none of our affair.

The United States is in the middle of the North American continent and if she wants to and is able to play the leading role in American affairs I cannot see how that can possibly concern Japan.

The Pacific Ocean lies between these nations.

It is the biggest ocean in the world. No nation can hope to monopolize it and as long as there is freedom of the seas, what possible cause of conflict can there be between the United States and Japan?

FURTHERMORE, what possible benefit is to be gained by either nation in a war with each other? Such a war would necessarily be protracted on

BULLETIN.

Honolulu, T. H., Jan. 11 (INS)—The six Navy planes flying here from San Francisco indicated they were on the last leg of their ocean flight when a request was received shortly before 7 a. m. today that the Makapu Point radio beam be turned on at 8:30 a. m. (Honolulu standard time).

San Francisco, Jan. 11 (AP)—The six Honolulu-bound navy planes making the longest nonstop mass flight in the history of aviation were on "the home stretch" nearing their goal today after flying blind throughout the night because of fog.

"Everything going fine," Lieut.-Com. Knefler McGinnis messaged navy headquarters here.

At 8:32 a. m. (Pacific Standard Time) the squadron was within about 460 miles of Honolulu, having flown 3750 nautical miles over the Pacific Ocean from San Francisco.

"Last night was overcast for most of the way, necessitating blind flying entirely," McGinnis said in his message.

The squadron sighted the aircraft tender Wright at 8:21 a. m.

Clear weather and favorable winds were expected to assist the fliers in their final dash to their destination.

One plane, the 10-P-5, piloted by Lieut. John Perry, became separated from the rest of the squadron last night because of the obscuring fog, but later rejoined the flight.

WOMAN STRUCK BY AUTO DIES

An unidentified woman about 45 years of age, died at Boston City Hospital early today of injuries suffered when she was struck and knocked down by an auto at Sterling and Washington sts., Roxbury.

Police say the machine was operated by William Taylor, of 634 Washington st., Dorchester. He told the police the woman evidently was crossing the street, and that he attempted to avoid striking her, but that she walked in front of the car. He stopped his car and took her to the hospital.

Russian Pact Part of Conflict Plot, It Is Charged

(Editor's Note: The flat assertion that Japan is preparing for war with the United States, in the belief that a world conflict between the white and yellow races is inevitable, is made by Vice-Admiral Nobumasa Suetsugu, commander-in-chief of the combined imperial Japanese fleets.

In an interview appearing in the Tokyo publication Gendai, Suetsugu charged that assumption of diplomatic relations between the United States and Soviet Russia "involves a scheme to surround Japan for military purposes," and declared that the only hope for world peace lies in voluntary relinquishment by the white race of its "assumed superiority."

JAP NAVAL CHIEF BARES PLANS FOR WAR WITH AMERICA

U. S. PACT WITH RUSSIA IS BRANDED PART OF PLOT

London naval treaty, is qualified for selection as navy minister in the event of war, and is the man with whom the fate of the empire is likely to be entrusted in the event of emergency.

In an interview appearing in the publication Gendai, Suetsugu not only drew a pessimistic picture of the future of world peace, but also charged that resumption of diplomatic relations between the United States and Soviet Russia involved a military scheme to surround Japan.

"A frontal clash between the two great Pacific fleets would seriously damage both sides," Hi said.

"It is likely that the United States would use every means to surround Japan. We must prepare for it, and in fact we are already preparing for it.

"The Stimson doctrine (non-recognition of territories gained by force, promulgated after Japan's seizure of Manchukuo), remains unchanged despite the Democratic administration in Washington.

"We do not believe that diplomacy will settle the issues and we are determined to prepare for the worst possibilities of an economic and political clash.

"Undue fears are not entertained regarding our navy's status. Nothing can frighten our nation if we are determined to fight to the last man.

SUBMARINE SUPERIORITY

"The geographical formation favors our defenses. No country in the world has a submarine fleet superior to that of Japan.

"The relationship between the United States and Soviet Russia involves a scheme to surround Japan for a military purpose, as proof of which I would point out that the U. S. S. R. is completing preparations for war and concentrating troops and a strong force of bombing planes in the Far East."

At this point in the interview Admiral Suetsugu digressed to furnish a geographical summary of Japan's task in defending her shores against the combined fleets of the world.

"If we waged an aggressive attack," he continued, "our task would be most difficult, but defense would be easy.

"The time has passed when the powers force us with threats. Any country scheming with such a psychology will find itself greatly mistaken.

"If the whites consider themselves superior we can fight them. In the problem of whites versus yellows lies the greatest obstacle to smoothing out Japan's diplomatic relations.

"World envy parallels the steady rise of the Japanese in world affairs. Heretofore the whites felt themselves privileged.

"The entire issues involved transcend diplomacy. Anglo-Japanese competition in cotton is responsible for today's deplorable diplomacy, likewise America's eagerness for China trade as well as our own ideas for the development of Manchuria place agreements between America and Japan in the darkest light.

TRADE WAR INEVITABLE

"Heretofore, the United States sold heavy industrial products here while we traded cotton and materials. As long as the different lines of trade did not clash that situation prevailed, but Japan's cotton and yarn business is not our only merchandise now.

"We build warships. It is not difficult to produce airplanes and automobiles. And a trade war between Japan and America is inevitable.

"The economic clash in the China market is similar to the situation there between Britain and Germany prior to the World War, which created a ten-year economic clash before the war itself.

"Prior to the Washington conference, Japan was quiet, America has prepared for war on the eve of the 1935 conference. America better prepared herself by concentrating her vessels in the San Francisco zone.

"I heartily support War Minister Araki that he cannot wage a victorious war unless we are united spiritually and in national defense. Having a fighting nation does not suffice. The whole nation must support us.

"Some are anxious over our defenses from the viewpoint of the possibility of an air attack and over the allegedly inferiority of the Japanese navy compared with that of the United States.

"I do not entertain such fears. Our cobined air force is sufficiently strong and numerically equal to others. Three air fleets may surround Japan and attack from Formosa, from the sea and from the north. I anticipate the presence of a great enemy fleet in the Pacific with a superior air force.

"Powers are bringing pressure for higher tariffs. This is an indirect blockade. If all join, we are isolated.

"Such facts as are developing will probably be precipitated in 1935 when the powers are scheduled to discuss naval matters. If the powers limit the defense rights of Japan, there will be no concession on the subject of an armament equality.

WILL FIGHT FOR ISLANDS

"The year 1935 coincides with our actual withdrawal from the League of Nations. (Japan's resignation, tendered last year, is not effective for two years.) We will not return the mandated islands only at the cost of war, and if the powers attempt to snatch them from Japan, a clash is inevitable.

"There is a strong possibility that the powers will campaign to drive Japan out of Manchuria as they forced us out of China at the time of the Washington conference.

"Some people say that the naval treaty brings peace. I do not subscribe to that view, as a mutually satisfactory treaty has not been concluded, and any time that a naval treaty does not bring peace it does not reduce financial burdens.

"If the Occidentals will throw off their assumed superiority and regard all human beings, irrespective of color, as their equals, then there will be real world peace."

MILK HEARING IS POSTPONED

A conference of milk dealers doing business in the Boston market, for the purpose of interviewing the future policy of merchandising milk, scheduled to be held at the State House today is postponed to a date to be announced later.

Director Ralph W. Robart of the state division of the necessaries of life, who issued the call for the conference, explained that an announcement is to come from Washington next week which will have a direct bearing upon the New England milk situation. Because of this, he said, it was deemed advisable to postpone the hearing set for today.

KILLER WRITES KIDNAP NOTES

Berwick, Me., Jan. 11—Solution of the mysteries disappearance in 1924 of Deputy Sheriff Harold C. Hillman, may be reached through kidnap threats against the family of County Atty. George D. Varney, his brother-in-law.

The county attorney revealed threats had been made to abduct his wife and two small children, by an anonymous writer who claimed he had slain Hillman.

His prediction that an arrest would be made in a few days led to the hope that the mystery surrounding the disappearance of the former deputy sheriff might be cleared up.

The latter was swallowed up in a snowstorm in Island Falls in December of 1924, after telling his wife he would be home in 15 minutes.

Varney said the letter, formed of words clipped from magazines and newspapers, had been deposited in a railway mail box.

Hearst Paper Makes History in Flight

San Francisco, Jan. 11—Six special editions of the San Francisco Examiner made history yesterday with the six planes of Lieut. Knefler McGinnis' ocean-hopping squadron.

Loaded into the planes just before the dauntless airmen took off on their 2400-mile epochal flight to Pearl Harbor, each of the six copies of the "monarch of the dailies" bore the words:

"This edition of the San Francisco Examiner was carried to Honolulu by navy planes in first mass formation hop across Pacific."

The editions were addressed to the commandant at Schofield barracks, Honolulu; the commandant at Pearl Harbor, the president of the Honolulu Chamber of Commerce; Governor-General Lawrence M. Judd, and the respective publishers of the Honolulu Star-Bulletin and the Honolulu Advertiser.

32 Per Cent Wage Boost

New York, Jan. 11—A 32 per cent increase in weekly wages paid to silk weavers since the industry came under the NRA code was reported by the silk code authority.

DEATH PICTURE AT DALY TRIAL

Harry "Pop" Riddell, aged Atlantic baker who was slain in his bakery in October, 1932, was strangled for at least three minutes before he died, it was testified today by Dr. Fred E. Jones, medical examiner, at the trial of John T. Daly, 20, of Quincy, in Dedham Superior Court.

The medical examiner declared death was due to "manual strangulation" and that the thyroid bone in the victim's neck was broken in four places.

It is impossible to determine if the injuries suffered by the baker were caused by more than one person, Dr. Jones said.

George Bowling, city chemist of Brockton, identified a pair of trousers on which he said he had had found bloodstains and "starch which was consistent with dried flour."

The trousers were a pair declared by police to have been found in Daly's room.

John Bowen, serving a life sentence after pleading guilty to second degree murder in the same slaying, was in court again today waiting to testify.

JAPS CHARGE REDS MASS ON BORDER

Maps Given Out to Show Soviets Are Ready to Strike

Tokio, Jan. 11 (INS)—Startling details of Soviet military preparations along the Manchurian border were officially published today by the Japanese army as it began a nationwide campaign to warn the public of the menace of war with the U. S. S. R.

In support of its allegations, the Imperial army started distribution of a map throughout the island empire. In color, it vividly illustrates the Soviet army and naval positions in Oriental Russia.

SHOWS HUGE FORCES

The detailed map shows the distribution of ten Soviet infantry divisions, totaling 150,000 men, and two complete divisions of cavalry. It reveals the airports where 400 Soviet military airplanes are quartered, including 60 heavy bombers.

Three hundred armored tanks are included in the motorized portion of the Soviet Siberian army, according to the map.

The army figures give 15,000 as the number of G. P. U. (Soviet secret service) men operating on the Manchurian and inner Mongolian border, on the lookout for spies.

Ten to 15 submarines are being constructed for use at Vladivostok and large airports are located at both Vladivostok port and Harbarovsk, junction of the Amur and Sungari rivers, the Japanese map indicates.

"FENCE OF RED GUNS"

The Soviet army in main is shown as stationed behind heavy fortresses in eight cities.

The Yomiuri newspaper in a headline today says:

"A fence of red guns encircles Manchukuo. Our army propagandizing can inform the Japanese that Manchuria is in danger of a war attack by the Soviets."

Meanwhile, information here reveals that the office of the Japanese military attache at Peiping, China, is included in the departments engaged in the campaign of warning.

Official statement by the Japanese Army representative there, given out in Chinese, warns the Chinese that they remain at least ntutral in case of a Japanese conflict with a thirg power, and should prepare their resources at the disposal of Japan.

RED MISSION BUSY

The newspaper Hochi today reports that the Soviet mission in Moscow is investigating Mongolian military affairs.

Foreign Minister Koki Hirota is preparing to negotiate with the Soviets as soon as the sale of the Chinese Eastern Railway to Manchukuo is pushed through, it was learned today. Hirota, former ambassador at Moscow, will ask the Soviets to abandon military measures being taken along the Manchurian and Korean borders, and to withdraw their troops.

Japs Add to Navy Under Manchukuo Flag

London, Jan. 11 (INS)—Japan is building for the so-called new State of Manchukuo, new naval vessels which in reality are additions to the Japanese navy, according to the Daily Herald today.

These vessels could not be affected by international treaty as Japan contends that they are under the Manchukuo flag and not the Rising Sun banner.

The Daily Herald also says that Japan will not agree to a suggested postponement of the Washington naval conference of 1936 because that would mean continuation of the present ratio between the "big three."

ROOSEVELT IS VICTORIOUS

Washington, Jan. 11 (AP)—The Administration triumphed in two consecutive tests today in the Senate reversing itself on the restrictions against liquor imports from nations remiss with debt payments, and the House granting unhampered right-of-way to the bill extending the Roosevelt economy powers.

On word from the White House of disapproval for the Clark amendment imposing further levies on alcoholic imports from the debt defaulters, the Senate changes its mind on a 44 to 30 vote.

Over Republican objection, the House Democratic leadership succeeded on a 263 to 212 vote in clamping on a stringent restriction of debate to protect the powers given the President to curtail Federal spending, including veterans' payments.

This signified easy and fast going for the legislation to the Senate, where the more liberal rules will mean more lengthy attacks.

Agency Files in Bankruptcy

account of the strength and valor of the two nations, and the end of the war, no matter which won, would find both nations prostrate.

What compensation could there possibly be for such physical and financial exhaustion as would inevitably result?

Suppose the United States should win, what would it gain?

THE United States does not want Manchukuo. Nor does it want Korea, nor any of Japan's territory, but some other nation might not be so indifferent to an opportunity for territorial expansion.

What would Japan gain by victory? It might take possession of Hawaii and the Philippines,—and it might NOT.

Russia and England both having interests in the Pacific might object to that, and England and Russia, not exhausted by war, might be difficult to deal with.

The United States will never precipitate such a war, and if Japan should precipitate it, Japan, in my humble opinion, would make as great a mistake as Germany made when she precipitated the Great War.

Militarists do not always realize that in these days of near civilization there are political and moral forces at work in the world more powerful in the long run than force of arms.

Progress and prosperity, wealth and happiness, both for Japan and the United States, lie in peace, not in war,—certainly not in war with each other.

The Japanese and the Americans are both great peoples. They should admire each other, respect each other, and live and develop in friendship and harmony with each other.

WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST.

Japan's Trade Invasions Alarms Mussolini

Rome, Jan. 11 (INS)—While the formidable economic competition offered by Japan in Africa and elsewhere has been occupying the attention of Premier Mussolini for some time, Italy plans no special budgetary outlays to cope with it, International News Service learned today.

The extent of Japanese commercial penetration in Africa was revealed recently with the disclosure that the far eastern empire had made great strides in trade dealings with Abyssinia, heretofore considered an Italian market.

Mussolini's own feelings with regard to Japanese commercial ambitions were made known in a recent speech in which he termed Japan a "formidable economic menace."

"Europe is no loner the continent which is leading civilization," Il Duce said.

"There was a time when Europe dominated the world politically, spiritually and economically.

"But on the other side of the Atlantic there has developed a great industrial and capitalist organization, while in the Far East Japan, after having entered into contact with Europe through the Russo-Japanese war of 1905, is now advancing by great strides through the West.

"Economically, Japan is already a formidable menace. It will surprise you to learn that Japanese silks have already appeared in our own chief silk citadels, such as Como and Milan, competing with our own products at lower cost.

"In the Island of Rhodes, Japanese bicycles are offered at the ridiculous price of 60 lira ($5).

Glass Breaking Spree Ends in Police Cell

Going on a brick-throwing spree which ended only when police subdued them after a struggle, two men succeeded in breaking windows in 16 houses on East Fourth st., South Boston, before they were handcuffed and loaded into a patrol wagon.

Refusing to give a reason for their strange behaviour except to admit it was "lots of fun," the two gave their names as John Dorham, 25, of 556 East Sixth st., South Boston, and James Reardon, 25, of 76 Dracut st., Dorchester.

Italy Trains All Girls to Be Wives

Motherhood Ultimate Goal of All From 6 to 18 Years

By SEYMOUR BERKSON

Copyright, 1934, by Universal Service, Inc.

Rome, Jan. 11—A vast program of Spartan-like training for Italian girls from 6 to 18, "to prepare the new feminine generation for their mission as wives and mothers," was begun today by order of Premier Mussolini.

The plan is being developed along lines similar to the boys' militaristic balilla, which is being expanded to include 4,000,000 boys for semi-military training under a special corps of 100,000 Fascist militia officers.

Clubhouses will be built for the Fascist girl units in each of Italy's 93 provinces. The girls will not carry muskets, like the balilla boys, but will be taught to march like soldiers. They will wear rigidly-blouse uniforms and take prescribed gymnastic exercises calculated to develop them.

The object of the new program is described officially as:

"Preparing the new feminine generation according to the principles of Fascist doctrine to assume their mission as wives and mothers, to learn how to run a household, how to raise children, what to do in case of illness, and the like."

Il Duce's order emphasizes that care must be taken not to permit the girls to engage in athletic games likely to hamper preparation for motherhood.

MELLON'S RULE OF AIR MAIL IS TRACED

Lindbergh and Hoover, Jr., Face Grill in Brown Inquiry

Washington, Jan. 11—Theodore Taney, president of Pittsburgh Airways, told Senate investigators today a contract for carrying mail on the New York-Kansas City-Los Angeles route was let to Transcontinental & Western Air on terms which cost the government approximately $470,000 annually more than the bid of his company and associates would have cost.

His company's bid was 6½ per cent of the 75-cent (plus variables) maximum, whereas the successful bidder, the Mellon Interests, asked 97½ per cent, he said. Taney figured this meant an excess cost to the government of $535,000 annually on the basis of one trip a day. Two are now being operated, he said.

LINK BROWN AGAIN

Charges that the Mellon industrial dynasty "chiseled" its way into domination of the company awarded contracts and drove his line into bankruptcy were hurled by Taney.

The whole affair resulted, Taney charged, in a Mellon-controlled company dominating one of the three companies awarded transcontinental air mail contracts.

C. E. Woolman, head of the Delta Air Service, testified his company was denied consideration by the postoffice department and had been forced to seek consolidation with American Airways, a subsidiary of the Aviation Corp.

WANT LINDY TO TELL

The committee members indicated today they would like to hear Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and Herbert Hoover, Jr., tell of their connections with two of the big air companies involved in the air mail charges made against ex-Postmaster-General Brown.

Lindbergh, if he appears, will be expected to answer questions about the gift of $250,000 Transcontinental Air Transport, Inc., stock he agreed to accept before he went with the company in 1928 as technical adviser. It was made clear by Senator Hugo L. Black (D.) of Georgia, chairman of the committee.

Under terms of the agreement, made with C. M. Keys, president of T. A. T., Lindbergh also was given an option to purchase 25,000 additional shares of T. A. T. stock over the years 1929, 1930 and 1931 at the par value, $10, if he still was employed by the company.

Hoover, son of the President, was in the employ of the Western Air Express, merged with T. A. T. to form Transcontinental and Western Air Transport, Inc., which now has a transcontinental mail contract granted by Brown under terms of the McNary-Waires act.

JAP WAR TALK STIRS CAPITAL

Washington, Jan. 11 (INS)—American officials today were stunned by the declaration of the commander-in-chief of the imperial Japanese navy that Japan is actually preparing for war with the United States.

"Militarism run wild," was how one high official described the declaration of Vice-Admiral Nobumasa Suetsugu, commander-in-chief of the combined fleets of Japan, that the Japanese empire was preparing for war with this country.

"Utterly pathetic," was the term used by another high State Department official, who said that it was nothing less than a "crime" for the Japanese military leaders to alarm their people with such declarations.

The general belief in State and Navy Department circles was that the Japanese naval commander's statement was designed to increase the fears of the Japanese people in order to assure support for the enormous sums which Japan is expending on her army and navy.

Doubt was expressed that Japan actually would attempt to attack the United States or its possessions.

"As long as Japan does not attack the United States, there will be no war between the two nations," one official said.

MORGENTHAU IN BOOTLEG WAR

Washington, Jan. 11 (AP)—Exhibiting different types of bottled liquor to newspapermen, Secretary Morgenthau said today the relaxing of some import restrictions was intended "to break the bootleg ring which still has the country by the throat, and to increase federal revenue."

Blended whiskey now being sold, he declared, contains only 1 to 5 per cent of real aged whiskey with much of it unfit to drink.

"We want to give the people a better drink at a cheaper price and get revenue for the government."

That was his explanation of the new order to get in great supplies of "American type" whiskies—defined by the Federal Alcohol Control Administration today as rye and bourbon, liquors indigenous to this country.

Customs collectors today were ordered to permit returning residents of the United States to bring in only one quart of liquor free of duty.

Some aged moonshine whiskey sold by bootleggers was said by Morgenthau to be a better beverage than much of the legal blended stock. This presents the situation he wants to break up through the new order.

Girl in Coma 2 Years Near Awakening

Restlessness of Patricia Maguire Buoys Parent's Hope

Chicago, Jan. 11—Patricia Maguire had one of her most restless night last night since she sank into a coma nearly two years ago.

It was a restlessness that encouraged her family to continue to hope that the 17-year-old Oak Park girl, a victim of sleeping sickness, may be approaching closer to consciousness.

Her mother, Mrs. Peter Miley, who has nursed her during the day and slept beside her at night, reported her charge had been similarly "active" the last few days.

Patricia during the time she has been unconscious since Feb. 14, 1932, has been frequently involuntarily restless, but some of her movements recently are interpreted by her family as seemingly of her own will.

For the first time the other day, Mrs. Miley said, Patricia apparently of her own volition lifted her feet from the bed. This she had not done before.

"It is the little things like that we watch for and which give us hope and belief that Pat is improving," she said.

The mother said that yesterday when giving the girl breakfast—it is necessary to feed her by spoon and massage her jaws to encourage her to chew—she jokingly told Pat not to eat any more of the cereal if she didn't want it.

2 BEAUTIES IN BOSTON PARTY STRANDED IN JUNGLE WILDS

LA VARRE SENDS PLEA FOR AID IN GUIANA

Expedition Hunting for Vast Bed of Diamonds Loses Its Supplies

Out of the deep jungles in British Guiana word came to Boston today that the La Varre diamond-hunting expedition, which left Boston eight months ago, is stranded through a disaster on the death-infested Essequibo river.

In the party are two young and pretty wives, hardly more than brides, Alice La Varre, wife of William La Varre, leader of the expedition, and Ilse La Varre, wife of his brother Andre, the first lieutenant.

The others of the expedition are David Binney Putnam, son of G. P. Putnam, the publisher, and stepson of the former Amelia Earhart; Maurice Kellerman, brother of the famed Annette Kellerman; Floyd Crosby, cameraman, and Henwar Rodakiewicz, anthropologist, of Buzzards Bay.

SUPPLY BOAT LOST

According to word received from the Guiana coast, finally reached by Indian runners with a request for assistance, the La Varre expedition suffered the wrecking of its supply and travel boat and the members are now waiting until aid and further supplies can reach them.

Many days have been spent by the runners in threading the jungle mazes to reach this aid and the delay probably will prolong the stay of the expedition in British Guiana beyond the expected year.

The expedition is one of the most daring ever undertaken in the far country and its objective, a reported carpet of diamonds in the heart of British Guiana, where no white man has yet set foot, has cost the lives of Spanish, French and British conquistadores.

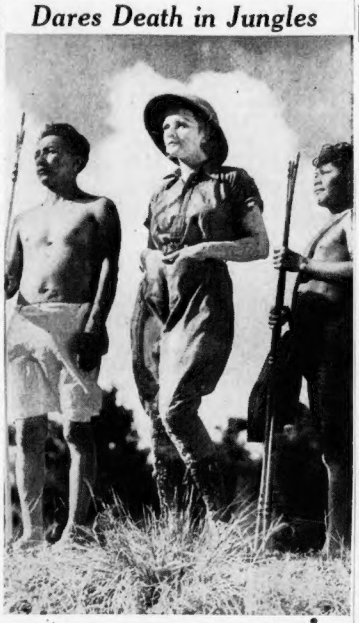
PERILS THEY FACE

In choosing to accompany their husbands, Alice and Ilse La Varre turned their backs on modern comforts for a year of perilous nights in fever-infested swamps; huge vampire bats that suck out the life blood, boaconstrictors, man-eating alligators, jaguars, tapirs and the death that lurks in the fetid stream where the bones of any land creature falling overboard are picked clean within seconds.

Alice La Varre, 22, the daughter of a corporation lawyer in Brooklyn, N. Y., is a beautiful brunette and was educated at the Chase school in Brooklyn.

Her sister-in-law is just as blonde as Alice is brunette, and is also a beauty. She is 18 and said to be from Vienna.

Dares Death in Jungles



Mrs. William La Varre, wife of the leader of the expedition which left Boston eight months ago and is now stranded on the death-infested Essequibo river in British Guiana. She and her sister-in-law are with the party. The explorers were hunting "a carpet of diamonds" when they lost their supply boat.

Probe N. H. Man's Death

Penacook, N. H., Jan. 11 (AP)—County officials today were conducting an investigation into the death of George B. Hibbard, grocer, found fatally wounded in his store here Tuesday. He died soon after being taken to a hospital.

FIX CASE GIRL'S MARRIAGE IS REVEALED

Mate Testifies Lena Lombari Now Is Mrs. Hamilton

The girl who has been known as Lena Lombardi in the Dracut "police fixing" case will hereafter be known as Mrs. Joseph J. Hamilton.

Hamilton informed the court today that the wedding bells had rung since the fateful ride, when heard his bride and a party of friends were returning from the Legion convention in Lawrence.

Hamilton charges that because of alleged infractions of the law he was drawn into a situation that called for paying two $50 bribes to Dracut police officers.

City Solicitor Hugh Downey of Lowell, Former Dracut Chief of Police William Conole, Dracut Policeman William Egan and John Sousa, Lowell lunchroom proprietor, are on trial because of Hamilton's charges.

Hamilton revealed his marriage during cross-examination by Atty. Thomas H. Mahoney, defense lawyer. He was completing a long period of testimony in which he admitted that he and the girl had agreed not to pay money and had talked with state police officers about their case.

Hamilton's appeal on three of the charges is now pending in Superior Court. He said that he applied to join the state police, and therefore was anxious to avoid conviction.

The complainant testified that Downey had sent him to Sousa, and Sousa opened negotiations with Egan. Ex-Chief Conole didn't figure directly, he said.

Federal Bank Pleas to Be Heard Monday

Thirty-eight motions and demurrers in the Federal Bank cases will be heard by Judge Hugh D. McLellan in federal court Monday at 2 p. m. A decision on these matters will dispose of all dilatory pleas, except pleas in abatement, it was learned.

Asst. U. S. Atty.-Gen. Irving G. McCann today announced that he is clearing teh decks so as to make possible speedy trial of defendants in the Federal and affiliated bank cases.

2 JAILED AFTER ATTEMPT TO BRIBE GIRL

Norwood Men Guilty of Making Offer to Assault Witness

Without right of appeal, two men were sentenced to a year in jail today for contempt of court, convicted of having tried to bribe the girl victim of a gang attack to leave the State, so she could not testify against four South Boston defendants.

The sentences were Judge Louis S. Cox's answer to gangland tampering with government witnesses.

Joseph Pecraro, 28, and John J. Tarasykiewicz, 28, both of Norwood, were convicted in Suffolk Superior Court of having offered Mrs. Anna Davis, 21, and her husband $300 and tickets to California or Florida.

Mrs. Davis was brutally attacked and seriously injured in South Boston last November and four youths subsequently arrested are now in jail awaiting trial this month.

Pecraro and Tarasykiewicz were arrested after Mrs. Davis phoned South Boston police and related the attempted bribe. Tarasykiewicz is a brother-in-law of the victim's husband, Walter Davis, who admitted during the trial that he had feared attack unless the offer made was accepted.

'L' Deficit Drops $500,000 in 5 Months

The Boston Elevated Railway deficit for five months ended Dec. 1 was nearly $500,000 less than during the same period of 1932, officials of the road informed Mayor Mansfield today. Total deficit for 1933 was $2,700,000. The deficit for the five months period was $1,432,334, as compared with $1,916,842 during the same period of the previous year.

The Washline Gang Again!

A sudden enthusiasm for lasso tossing was anticipated in Quincy today as a result of the theft of five clotheslines from the yards of Atlantic. Police believe boys are responsible for thethefts. In three instances the weekly wash was tossed to the ground and the rope stolen.

Girl Names 'Gustin' Attacker in Court

Court had just concluded in South Boston today with five men convicted of various counts of participating in a riot in South Boston Saturday night, when a girl, who had listened to the proceedings, accused one of the men of having attacked her.

Rose Fallon

The girl is Rose Fallon, 28, who lives in Ziegler st., Roxbury. She complained to Boston police last March that two Gustin gangsters had assaulted and beaten her at a Lexington roadhouse. At the time Miss Fallon had threatened to turn her Boston terrier loose on the alleged thugs.

The name of the accused man was not made public today, but Lexington police were notified to send one of the two John Doe warrants sworn out at the time.

The affray was inspired by the beating of one member of a gang at the dance and a call for revenge. Many a head was cracked in the trouble, and only quick action by police averted serious injuries.

In court today Peter Diminico, 21, of West Third st.; Victor Ragalesky, 21, of East Second st.; John J. Lydon, 22, of Dresser st.; John Callahan, 32, of H st., all South Boston, and James J. McDonough, 30, of Mt. Vernon st., Dorchester, were found guilty of riot and affray.

Ragalesky, Lydon and Diminico were also found guilty of having weapons in their possession. Ragalesky, who had been arrested with two guns at the Club Chalet during the shooting of "Keeno" Keenan, was returned to jail on a year's sentence suspended previously.

He was given 18 months total sentences on today's charges. Diminico got the same sentence, and both appeald and we hld in $10,000 bail. Lydon got the same sentence but was allowed $2500 bail. McDonough and Callahan got six months and were held in $2500 and $10,000 respectively.

The court was shown an array of weapons allegedy used in the riot. There were bowling pins, cue sticks, crank handles and all sorts of clubs.

ASYLUM PLOT PROBE OPENS

Investigation into charges made by Chief of Police Walter F. Reeves of Swampscott, that a Lynn attorney had tried to "railroad" a woman to an insane asylum was launched today by Atty. Henry R. Mayo, president of Essex County Bar Association.

"If we find that such a charge can be substantiated we will take immediate action against the lawyer," he said.

Chief Reeves alleges that he was approached by an attorney who had signed annulment papers for Mrs. Josephine Yacino to the Danvers State Hospital for observation.

"This was a barefaced attempt to railroad the woman to the asylum," said Chief Reeves. "I had her examined by three physicians and all pronounced her normal. No lawyer can get away with anything like this."

SWAIN CAUGHT IN GEM BREAK

Because he wanted to give presents of jewelry to his sweetheart, 16-year-old Edward McLaughlin of 25 Monument st., Charlestown, is charged with kicking in a glass door of the Ellis Jewelry Co. at 159 Washington st. and taking $500 in watches and rings. Then he walked into the arms of four policemen early today.

Waiting until the street was clear, police claim the lad broke the glass door of the store and entered, selected a watch and ring and string of pearls, and then added 68 rings, 16 watches, 11 bracelets and a few other things. He was arrested as he attempted to flee from police.

ROOSEVELT KIN BETROTHED TO ARCHITECT

New York, Jan. 11—The engagement of Miss Grace Roosevelt, only daughter of Col. and Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, and William McMillan of Baltimore, has been announced. The wedding will take place March 3 in Christ Protestant Episcopal Church in Oyster Bay, followed by a reception at Sagamore Hill, estate of Miss Roosevelt's grandfather, the late Theodore Roosevelt.

Grace Roosevelt

Miss Roosevelt, educated at Foxcroft School and the Sorbonne in Paris, she made her debut two years ago and has been a member of the Junior League.

McMillan, who is 28 years old, is an architect, the son of the late Hugh McMillan of Detroit and Mrs. Walter Dent Wise of Baltimore. He is a nephew of the late Senator James McMillan.

McMillan has shot big game in various parts of the world and is an expert yachtsman. In 1930 he sailed with John Alden on the Malabar-10 when that boat won the Bermuda race, and the next year he took part in the transatlantic race from Newport, R. I., to Plymouth, England, in his own schooner, the Water Gipsy.

In 1931 he also participated in the Fastnet race, when rough weather was encountered, and won second place. He took third in the 1932 Bermuda race with the Water Gipsy.

HENRY FORD FULLY BACKS BASIC IDEAL OF NRA

Auto Magnate Sees Change for Better in Direction; Says Mistake Was in "Starting at Wrong End"

New York, Jan. 11 (AP)—The New York Times, in a dispatch from Detroit today, said Henry Ford expressed complete belief in the ideal behind the NRA.

The dispatch recounted an interview, obtained by Harold N. Denny of the Times staff, in one of the offices of the Ford engineering laboratories, and the motor car manufacturer was quoted as saying of the NRA:

"There is no possible way for them to do any harm," and later —"The NRA is being improved. We believe absolutely in what it is trying to do. There were possibilities of harm at the beginning, but somebody with good sense seems to have stepped in."

Further on, he was quoted:

"So, up to the present time we have believed absolutely in the ideal behind the NRA. But the NRA hasn't tackled the fundamentals yet, there's been too much selfishness in the support of it. Some interests thought they could use the NRA to start a new trade trust and run out the independents.

"Well, it didn't work. But NRA didn't stop them—the independents did. You can't squash people out. Independence is part of of every American. And it has not been responsible for any of our ills—our loss of independence is what causes trouble.

"But if these supporters of the NRA keep on trying to crush competition they'll get left. Competition furnished the incentive for people to rise, for genius to come up."

"TOO MUCH MONEY TALK"

Ford said the new era will not be in the hands of the people "who try to do things in the same old way" and he denounced what he called the concentration of attention on money by the NRA supporters.

"They are trying to hang on to the money system," he was quoted. "They are trying to rebuild things in the same old circle. And it can't be done. We have got to break out of that circle if we're going to get anywhere.

"The departure of the United States from the gold standard doesn't interest me. That's just part of the superstition of money. People accept gold because it looks good to them.

"START AT WRONG END"

"There is some terrible fallacy in the price system, something humanly wrong. The NRA is tied up with the price system and so is beginning at the wrong end of the problem.

"We have never seen any overproduction of anything," the manufacturer was further quoted. "There is no overproduction of wheat when men are hungry in the streets. Our breakdown, is in our system of distribution."

Elsewhere in the dispatch the interviewer said Ford revealed himself as an admirer of President Roosevelt, and a sympathizer with the President's efforts to lead the country to a lasting prosperity.

"The new era will not crush our individualists," the manufacturer said. "It will allow them to become more individual than ever. Narrow selfishness is not individualism at all."

WOMEN LINKED IN N. H. DEATH

Charlestown, N. H., Jan. 11—Vengeance was declared today to be the motive in the slaying of George L. Thomas, 40, electrical equipment salesman, whose battered body was found yesterday in an unoccupied bungalow near here.

John H. Leahy, solicitor of Sullivan County, declared that the investigation thus far revealed that Thomas had apparently been slain for revenge in a quarrel, caused either by a woman or bootlegging activities.

Leahy plans to question six persons today, two of them women.

The autopsy will be performed today, in Claremont, by Dr. H. M. Kingsford, of Dartmouth College, state pathologist. Leahy said it had already been determined that Thomas died between the hours of 11:30 a. m. and 1:30 p. m. last Jan. 2.

call a recess until the whole building was cleared. Police reserves were summoned and women protested being ejected.

CARRIED IN CHAIR

Dr. Wynekoop was carried in a chair into an anteroom back of the court where she will fight for her life, a life already flickering violently beneath the winds of disease and age, to face a battery of cameras. She seemed unimpressed; one black-gloved hand rested at her throat, cutting off the clay-like pallor of her face beneath its black brimmed hat. A flashlight bulb exploded. The hand did not move.

On first sight the woman physician seemed to be a creature of shadows.

There was her head—gray and black, the eyes rimmed by glasses that glinted colorlessly, a black veil dotting her skin with shadow specks. She sat very erect and still, her bony figure outlined by her new black silk gown and white silk scarf. She sat almost too still—frozen. It was as if she had withdrawn inside herself deliberately, leaving the surface of the accused murderess completely unreal.

The only time she showed human awareness was before Judge Joseph B. David entered the courtroom.

Then, her son Walker, six feet tall and blonde, leaned over to say: "Good luck, Mother!"

And Dr. Catherine Wynekeep, her only daughter, put her hand on her shoulder.

Dr. Wynekoop looked up swiftly, and rested her fingers in Walker's hair, and kissed him. Then Catherine bent and kissed her lightly, as if she would impart confidence by her very manner. The two took seats just behind and to the left of the defendant.

EARLE ABSENT

Earle Wynekoop, central figure in the tragedy, who the prosecution contends it was to pave the way for his happiness that Dr. Wynekoop chloroformed and shot Rheta, the 23-year-old wife, was not in court.

He has been hiding for days in the forbidding stone house where his red-haired wife screamed her last agonies. Walker Wynekoop said he had "not the slightest idea" if Earle would come to court or not. The younger son is "all broken up" since the tragedy, his brother averred.

Nevertheless, defense attorneys plan to call Earle as a witness, Earle, the "babyed" member of the family, whose lack of self-reliance endeared him especially to his efficient mother.

Selection of the jury began promptly. As the men filed past the counsel table at which Dr. Wynekoop sat, she shifted in her chair, the better to obsedve them.

Firebug Hanged

Vienna, Jan. 11 (AP)—Peter Strauss, a tramp, was hanged today, a few hours after he was found guilty by a court martial of burning a farmer's haystack. It was the first capital punishment case in Austria since 1918.

World's Best NRA Code Is in Prison

When better NRA hours are announced, the state prison at Charlestown will be on the job a bit ahead of the work-a-day world.

About 700 of the 954 convicts—132 of whom are lifers—are employed in the shops where mattresses, wire, shoes, brushes, auto plates and underwear are made.

The prisoners work an average of 29½ hours a week, well within even the newly proposed 32-hour week according to Warden Hogsett.

Of course the pay doesn't measure up to that in outside industry, and when the men quit work around 3:30 there's no place to go —but "home" and they're already there.

FOUR NEW CWA AIDS CHOSEN

An executive director and three others officials of the Massachusetts CWA board, whose appointments have been confirmed by Washington, today took over their positions in administering the government's re-employment program.

The four men and their positions are: Dwight R. Winter, former mayor of Springfield, who is director; Howard G. Philbrook, 51 Winthrop rd., Brookline, assistant director; Clarence A. Bingham of Norwood, special assistant to the director, and Theodore Torrey of Amesbury, chief accountant.

Salaries attached to the new positions are as follows: Winter, $113 weekly; Philbrook, $105 weekly, and Bingham and Torrey, $90 weekly.

MANSFIELD TO STUDY HEARST SALES TAX

Mayor Frederick W. Mansfield is today making a study of the proposal, which is being advocated by 27 Hearst newspapers, for the creation of a manufacturers sales tax to take the place of the national income tax and so to distribute more equitably the burden of taxation upon the people of our country.

Mr. Mansfield expressed himself as interested in the proposal and said that he would make a statement today concerning it.

McCORMACK PLANS BILL

The mayor is thus joining a large and important group of serious-minded people throughout the country who are giving their attention to this vital problem, which, for two years, has been advocated by Mr. William Randolph Hearst, which seeks relief from the inequitable burden of the income tax.

The proposal of Mr. Hearst, which is about to take concrete form in the shape of a bill to be introduced into Congress by Rep. John W. McCormack, of Boston, would abolish the national income tax altogether, and substitute a manufacturers' sales tax to take its place.

WALSH LEADS FIGHT

Both Congressman McCormack and Senator David I. Walsh have expressed themselves as opposed to the national income tax laws as being unfair to the average man.

The manufacturer's sales tax, both have urged, would except taxation on food and clothing and other vital necessities, and would supply a much more reasonable method of financing the country's need.

By this method of taxation, provided it is accepted by Congress, the average man, instead of having to make a payment to the Government on the 15th of March would have his tax distributed throughout the year in connection with such commodities as he might buy.

For instance he would perhaps pay one or two cents more for each article of toilet necessities, or drugs, or inner tubes or any of the commodities which he would normally buy. But he would not have to fill out or file an income tax report nor pay the government, in a lump sum, the money which is now required of him.

COUNCIL STRONG FOR PLAN

The New England Council, representing business and manufacturing men throughout New England, has reissued figures which it secured from a poll of 2608 members. The poll was made to determine the feeling of its membership on this question.

The results are overwhelmingly in favor of the manufacturer's sales tax. The ratio of the replies, by states, are:

Maine, five to one for the tax; New Hampshire, fourteen to one; Vermont, four to one; Massachusetts, eleven to one; Rhode Island, ten to one and Connecticut, seven to one.

A country wide campaign is now in progress, under the auspices of the Hearst newspapers to bring this matter to the attention of the people of the United States and it is believed not unlikely that the present session of Congress will pass this legislation.

Boston's Man of Money

DORSEY TAKES OFFICE OATH

In the presence of city officials and other dignitaries, John H. Dorsey, of Melville ave., Dorchester, was inducted into the office of city treasurer at 9 o'clock today.

The ceremony took place in the office of City Clerk Wilfred Doyle at City Hall. A Dorchester druggist and treasurer of the Meeting House Hill Co-operative Bank, Dorsey succeeded Edmund L. Dolan, whose resignation was accepted yesterday, after an audit of his books.

Another appointee of Mayor Mansfield is Lewis H. Weinstein, of 166 Seaver st., Roxbury, as assistant corporation counsel. He will succeed Charles H. McGlue.

Milton Man Jailed in Looting of CCC

A sentence of six months in jail and a fine of $100 was imposed upon Andrew Bonetti, of Milton, by Quincy district court today after he was found guilty by Judge Kenneth Johnson of receiving stolen goods from members of the CCC camp in Milton. He appealed.

Frank Viviano, member of the CCC, was found guilty of larceny and placed on probation. Angelo Garitanio, another member of the CCC, was found not guilty of larceny.

BEANO IS RULED TEST OF SKILL

Beano, as played in Somerville, is a game of skill, and not chance, Judge Michael E. Sturtevant, in Somerville district court, ruled today in finding six men, charged with setting-up and promoting a lottery, not guilty.

The men were Louis Stone, of Sumner st., Albert Shaw, of Atlantic ave., both Revere; Harry Knopov, Thornton st., Abe Shore, Elliot st., Michel A. Ring, Fayston rd., and Bernard Hurwits, of Worthington st., all Roxbury.

In finding them not guilty, Judge Sturtevant said:

Beet Sugar Makers to Ban Child Labor

Salt Lake City, Jan. 11 (AP)—Executives representing companies which manufacture 85 per cent of the beet sugar in America, have voted for elimination of child labor in the beet fields. The views of the United States Beet Sugar Association were made public by W. D. Lippitt of Denver, president of the Great Western Sugar Co., and chairman of the association, today.

GYP RING HUNT CENTERS HERE

Operations of the alleged New Hampshire insurance fraud ring may have netted as much as $100,000, it was learned today, as police prepared to arrest more Boston residents including another woman.

The investigation, which has already resulted in arrest of five men and two women here and in New Hampshire, indicated that the ring has operated successfully for 18 months at least.

Mrs. Margaret Griffin, wife of Patrolman Gerald Griffin of Boston, one of those taken into custody, was bailed at Manchester last night by her mother-in-law, Mrs. Mary T. Griffin of Tufts st., Roxbury.

The other women arrested, Mrs. Arthur F. Wood, of Vermont st., West Roxbury, is awaiting a hearing. Her husband, formerly a bank master in chancery, and Donald Hodgson, 32, and Charles Peterson, both of Manchester, are being held for the Hillsboro county, New Hampshire grand jury.

Awaiting extradition hearings in Boston are Warren Wood, of Rowe st., Roslindale, brother of Arthur Wood, and Raymond Fiumino of Ridge st., West Roxbury.

Police are seeking four other men, two of them residing in Boston and Belmont.

POLICE TRAIL BANDIT GANG

A man who calls himself "Boston Blackie, Jr.," was hunted by police today in connection with filling station holdups and the kidnaping and robbery of a taxi driver.

Also sought are two men companions and an attractive blonde, who, according to victims, watched the holdups. Joseph Ainsworth, 36, of North Beacon st., Brighton, and a man whose identity was not revealed, are wanted by police.

The girl is the sweetheart of "Boston Blackie, Jr.," whose real name police say is Louis Swett, 21, of Rawson rd., Quincy.

Their first victim last night was Thomas P. Kane, of Foster st., Brighton, a taxi driver. They struck him on the head, took $17, and forced him out in Cambridge.

Later they held up William F. McLaughlin, at a Main st., Cambridge, filling station, beat him master in chancery, and Donald on the head and robbed him of $20.

At the filling station, 302 Congress st., Boston, they robbed Edward McGuiness of High st., Charlestown, and Raymond Boyd of Beacheroft st., Brighton, of $70 and locked them in the washroom.

Boy, Shot at Own Request, Is Dead

Seattle, Jan. 11 (AP)—A boy's request to his playmates, "I wish you would shoot me, shoot me here" (pointing to his stomach), was studied by authorities today in the strange death of Prescott Marion, 14-year-old son of a socially prominent family.

The lad died yesterday several hours after he had been found at a street corner.

Even to his mother he gave no clues about the shooting.

Queries among playmates, however, disclosed he had made the request to them to shoot him several days ago. He was shot with a .22-caliber rifle while on his way to a store.

Paper Director Dies

New York, Jan. 11—Rudolph Pagenstascher, 57, president of the Manufacturers Paper Company and a director of the International Paper Company, died here of heart disease.

BANDITS STEAL $15,000 LOAD

Great Barrington, Jan. 11 (AP)—Word was received in Great Barrington today that a Berkshire-New York overnight express truck with its cargo, valued at $15,000, had been taken by six highwaymen at Sommers, N. Y.

Robert Doncaster, 21, of this town, operator of the truck, communicated with the firm of Kimball & Ladd, owners of the truck, saying the robbers, after taking the truck, had made him a prisoner for three hours.

The merchandise stolen included shipments from the Monument Mills and the Rising Paper Co. of this town, and the Arnold Print Works of North Adams.

CITY SOLID FOR CODE—FILENE

With an enrollment of 21,014 firms under the Blue Eagle, Boston business men are practically 100 per cent operating in the NRA, according to a statement today of Edward A. Filene, chairman of the state recovery board.

Filene's report stated that of the above number of firms 422 had not as yet reported how many persons were employed by them. The remainder, he said, at the time of signing were employing a total of 219,540 men and women.

Of the number of firms signed, the report went on, slightly under 14 per cent were manufacturers, nearly 8 per cent wholesalers, 21 per cent engaged in servicing, 8½ per cent listed as miscellaneous and 41½ per cent in the construction field.

Burns Kill Maid in Springfield Home

Springfield, Jan. 11—Elizabeth MacPherson, 16, died in a hospital here of burns suffered when her clothing took fire from an electric plate over which she was drying clothing. She did not apparently notice the flames until they had begun to envelop her body. She was employed in the home of Arthur H. Turner.

FAY DEMANDS RUDY'S RICHES

Los Angeles, Jan. 11—Temporary alimony of $7400 a month and attorney fees of $50,000 will be asked by Fay Webb Vallee when she goes into court here next Wednesday to begin prosecution of a suit for separate maintenance against Rudy Vallee, orchestra leader.

The demands of Mrs. Vallee were disclosed in answers to a wife's questionnaire filed in connection with the suit, which accused Vallee of indiscretions with three women, among them Alice Faye, actress and a member of his troupe.

Under a property agreement which she will seek to abrogate, Mrs. Vallee is receiving $100 a week. In her suit she asserted that when she signed the agreement Vallee was making $350,000 a year, and now is earning $50,000 a month. She also claimed she was the victim of subterfuge employed by him in making the agreement.

An attorney for her said that, despite her ill-health, she intended to be in court when the hearing on temporary alimony is called.

New York, Jan. 11 (AP)—The gorilla population of the United States, is still two.

For a while it looked as though it might be cut 50 per cent when Janet Penserosa, prize exhibit of the Bronx Zoo, caught cold.

Janet, approaching her seventh birthday, began ailing last week. Her long fingers pressed to an apparently aching ear, she emitted noises classified by the keeper as sneezes.

Keepers prescribed hot lemonade and an increased allotment of cod liver oil. Recovery was almost immediate and by way of showing her appreciation, Janet went through a fine performance on the flying trapeze.

SO HE PAID HIS FINE OF $50

A sentence of two weeks in the House of Correction, imposed in municipal court, was converted to a $50 fine today in Suffolk superior court when Richard Diteberg of Parker st., Chelsea, appeared before Judge Cox, charged with driving to endanger.

"How long will it take you to pay as $50 fine?" asked Judge Cox today.

"Oh, a long time," replied Diteberg.

"No, it won't," said the court, "this isn't the international debt, you understand. You have two weeks' imprisonment staring you in the face, and you'll pay the $50 by January 15 or else——"

"Yes, sir," meekly replied the defendant.

Paris, Jan. 11 (INS)—The Franco-Soviet commercial pact was formally signed at the Quai d'Orsay's today.

The government placed large orders for French aluminum, steel, airplane motors, machine tools, and electrical supplies, with credit for 22 months guaranteed by the Soviet Oil Trust, which supplies petroleum to the French navy.

CWA MAN HELD WITH LOOT

Caught looting police lockers at Station 14, Brighton, a CWA worker, assigned to paint the building, was arrested for larceny there today after a struggle.

James Donato, 28, of Woodward ave., Roxbury, will not only lose his CWA job, but faces a jail sentence.

He has been painting about the station for a week, but today was told the guardroom was in use and that he couldn't work. So he went into the locker room and, with a score of officers behind a wall a few feet away, proceeded to help himself to whatever was handy.

Building Supt. John Waidron glimpsed him leaving the locker room with several pairs of rubber boots listing bags and pillow cases. He challenged him and Donato broke into a run, dashed through the guardroom, past the desk and out the door.

Waidron collared him on the steps and there was a sharp struggle which ended with the arrival of several startled patrolmen. A checkup of all the lockers began as Donato was being booked.

Fords Drew $11,000,000 From Closed Bank

Washington, Jan. 11 (AP)—Edsel Ford told newspapermen today his company had got back about $11,500,000 of the $32,500,000 on deposit in the Guardian banks of Detroit when they closed a year ago.

The admission came during a recess in the hearing being conducted on the case of the bank holiday by the Senate banking committee.

The son of Henry Ford told the committee he had about 50,000 shares of group stock when the bank holiday came last February.

DENIES TAX DODGE

At one time, previous testimony showed, this amount was valued at approximately $15,000,000, but since it became worth less than nothing, due to assessment of stockholders.

Ford denied a suggestion by the investigators that the Ford Motor Co. purchased seven and one-half million dollars of government bonds at the end of 1932 to avoid a state tax.

Ferdinand Pecora, committee counsel, asked if the Ford company had made any "special or temporary" deposits in the bank unite.

"There may have been," Ford replied.

Pecora then asked if the motor company had purchased $7,500,000 of United States Treasury notes on December 31, 1932, from the Guaranty Trust Co. of New York and sold them back January 3, 1933.

"It is quite possible," Ford replied.

"What was the reason?"

FOR MASSACHUSETTS REPORT

"We probably wanted to show less cash in our annual statement to be published in Massachusetts later," Ford said.

Ford was vague in his recollection of conferences leading up to the holiday and efforts by the group holding company to save the system.

Investigators announced Kenneth McCarren, chairman of the Detroit board of city assessors, would be called to testify tomorrow concerning Ford Company taxes.

CUT HOURS TO MAKE JOBS

Washington, Jan. 11 (AP)—Dissatisfaction with the volume of re-employment achieved by NRA through its code regime showed itself today the underlying cause of Hugh S. Johnson's intention to try for a general further shortening of work hours.

Conservative estimates of NRA officials on the employment increase actually attributable to codes in the manufacturing industries, they say, do not exceed 1,500,000 men.

This does not include the substantial increases in trades and service industries which are not accurately estimated. However, it is the manufacturing industries which officials feel must be counted upon to take the lion's share of permanent employment.

Public works and civil works are now carrying a load estimated at 4,000,000 men or more. This is temporary work, most of it to end in the spring.

Administration quarters assert a feeling that if real, lasting recovery is to be had industry must find jobs for a large proportion of these men once the civil-works expenditures are cut off. There is a certainty also at NRA that such re-employment can not be forthcoming within the year on present schedules.

While the spring situation is not regarded as especially critical, normal re-employment must be well under way before next winter; or, with the unemployed apparently counting on federal relief, budgetary plans to cut down on extraordinary expenditures possibly could be shot sky high by new demands on the treasury.

PAIR CAPTURED ON ROOFTOP

Two alleged burglars, one of whom was badly cut when a heavy plate glass window collapsed on his hand, led a squad of policemen on a chase over a dozen housetops before they were captured, at the point of guns, shortly before dawn today.

Taken to the North st. police station the pair gave their names as John Colluci, 18, of 9 Stillman st., and Orlando Obite, 22, of 47 North Margin st., North End. Both were locked up on attempted burglary charges after Colluci was treated at the Haymarket Relief Station for a lacerated right hand.

The roof chase took place a few minutes after the two men, in attempting to enter a vacant store at 7 Margin st., shattered a plate glass.

KING'S ACCUSER TO CALL OWN WITNESSES

London, Jan. 11 (AP)—Clarence Guy Gordon Haddon, 43-year-old unemployed consulting engineer, won the right to call defense witnesses when he went on trial today charged with threatening and attempting to b l ackmail K i n g George.

CLARENCE HADDON

Agreeing to subpoena w i t nesses, but reserving decision on whether he w i l l hear them, J u s t i c e Charles adjourned the hearing until either Jan. 19 or 23.

Haddon, who claims to be the i l l e g i t i mate son of the late Duke of Clarence, elder brother of King George, told the court:

"I have witnesses to say that my mother was secretly married to the Duke of Clarence."

WANTS BOARDING HOUSE

Haddon asserted they had relevance, adding "I am trying to prove I had grounds for making these appeals to His Majesty, the King."

In this, he referred to letters he is alleged to have written to the king asking a £3,000 a year private income, "with enough ready money to start a modern boarding house."

Asked if he had counsel, Hadden said he was defending himself because of lack of funds.

His bail of £100 (normally about $500), was renewed on Haddon's promise not to issue letters, posters or correspondence of any sort until the trial is resumed.

The Duke of Clarence, Prince Albert Victor, to whom Haddon claims relationship, died in January, 1892, at 28.

WOULD EXPOSE ROYALTY

Haddon was arrested November 29. At a hearing December 5, G. D. Roberts, treasury counsel, read a number of letters bearing the signature "Clarence G. Gordon Haddon" which had been received at Buckingham Palace. One read in part:

"I am ending up in gaol for medical attendance. The world will see the honorable and just treatment of your royal family.

"It would only have taken a year's income from my late father to have made me the happiest and most contented man in the British empire . . .

"I hope the royal family will be content at least with their handiwork. I will make every effort to let the world see the royal family in their true colors before the end of it."

In a letter, dated July 11, Haddon is alleged to have written that he was sending copies of letters "to each ruler and President of all countries in the next few days.

"As will be seen by the copy I enclose herewith, I have sent a copy to the President of the United States. This is the first, and the rest will follow in the near future."

AUSTRIAN NAZIS CROSS BORDER

London, Jan. 11 (AP)—A Reuters (British) News Agency dispatch from Vienna today said it was rumored that the so-called Austrian legion, comprised of Austrian Nazis who have left the country and gone to Germany since the advent to power of the present Austrian regime, had crossed the frontier into Austria near Kufstein.

Vienna, Jan. 11 (AP)—More than 500 Nazi candidates for courtmartial are in Austrian jails today as a result of tumultuous nationwide anti-government demonstrations.

Two young Nazi demonstrators paid with their lives for their determination to show Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss that his latest campaign to exterminate Hitlerism here is doomed to failure.

Home Loan Bonds Up on Guarantee Move

New Haven, Conn., Jan. 11—Peter M. Kennedy, manager of the Connecticut branch of the home owners' loan corporation, reports an increased demand from mortgage holders for the corporation's bonds as a result of a movement in Washington to have the principal on them guaranteed by the federal government. Offers to accept the bonds in exchange for mortgages, he said, come from many persons and banks who previously had refused to accept them.

Asbestos Heir Goes Back to Marcelle

New York, Jan. 11—Tommy Manville, Jr., has removed the asbestos covering of his family's millions and melted back into the arms of his "dream girl" wife No. 4, from whom he separated Sunday.

At the Manville estate bordering Long Island Sound, the butler, asked if Mr. and Mrs. Manville were home, said:

"Yes, yes, they are."

"They?"

"Exactly, sir."

This was the only intimation of a reconciliation. All that could be learned was that Manville had come home early in the morning, but everything about the house, even the butler, was smiling. Mrs. Manville is the former Marcelle Edwards of the stage.

STAVISKY CASE SHAKES FRANCE

Paris, Jan. 11 (INS)—Grave warning that the $40,000,000 Stavisky pawnshop swindle may threaten the foundations of the French Republic, was sounded by Ferdinand Bouisson, president of the Chamber of Deputies, in opening this afternoon's session at which the Government of Premier Camille Chautemps came under fire in connection with the financial scandal.

Anticipating a heated attack Bouisson called upon the deputies not to carry their assault to the point where the republic might be menaced.

Referring for the first time to the possibility that a dictatorship might supplant the parliamentary system in France, Bouisson said:

"At a time when Europe is falling under dictatorships, the French parliament must not permit the least incursion into representative rule which might end by affecting the Republic itself."

Edouard Herriot, former premier, then proposed the order on which the Chautemps government is destined to stand or be ousted from office before nightfall. It read:

"Resolved, that the government should unveil the Stavisky scandal regardless of the political victims."

JOBLESS AID ASKS PROBE

Brockton, Jan. 11—Grave irregularities including that of forging his name to work slips, were charged today by Walter F. Hall, federal re-employment manager here.

Hall declared, in asking for an investigation by agents of the federal civil works office in Boston, that appointment of men on civil works projects were governed by politics that favoritism ran high and that his name had been forged on orders putting persons to work.

GOODWIN FILES NEW RATE PLEA

Establishment of a uniform premium rate for compulsory auto insurance, featured proposed legislation filed with the Legislature on petition of Frank A. Goodwin for the Equal Tax League.

Under the plan all passenger cars would pay a flat rate of $18, trucks $25 and taxicabs $100, with profits, commissions and the duplication of overhead expenses eliminated. Goodwin also seeks the creation in the State Department of Public Works of a division of motor vehicle insurance.

Charles C. O'Donnell of Lynn petitioned for an act repealing the compulsory auto insurance law, substituting a three cent tax on gas for a fund to meet indemnities, with a commission to handle claims.

Nila Cook as Vagrant Sent To Home in Calcutta

Calcutta, Jan. 11 (AP)—Homeless and alone, Nila Cram Cook of Iowa today entered a home under the vagrancy act. She told a magistrate she had no place else to go.

The former follower of Mahatma Gandhi said, however, that she expected to be repatriated to America soon, together with her son, who is in Ahmedabad, under protection of a guardian named by Gandhi.

Beautiful Nila, who joined Gandhi to secure "release from the bondages of earthly existence," stayed in his seminary less than a year when she suddenly left "that rigid life" for one of "thrills."

"I don't care what others say," the former Iowan explained after leaving the seminary. "My heart is leaping for thrills. I want speed. I want to fly. I want to attend orchestra dances."

She said she slept on a bed of bricks for eight months in the seminary, and on leaving wrote the Mahatma about her change of heart and of "the flutter caused by meeting a man with beautiful eyes and brows."

In New Delhi she bought an automobile on approval and it overturned while she was driving at a rapid rate, giving her severe bruises.

Miss Cook is the daughter of the late George Cram Cook, author and poet.

WATER RATE CUT IN NEWTON

Marking the second in three years, a new decrease in water rates for Newton residents went into effect today, following its announcement by Richard H. Ellis, water commissioner of that community.

The new price for water is 20 cents per 100 cubic feet. According to Ellis the first cut came in 1932, when the rate was cut from 25 to 22½ cents. The new cut of 11.5 per cent now makes a flat rate of 20 cents.

BATES DENIES CWA SALARY

Russell T. Bates, Republican county commissioner of Norfolk County, today denied charges of Miss Florence Birmingham, president of the Massachusetts Woman's Political Club, in a recent statement, that he is drawing $36 weekly from the CWA in addition to his official salary.

"I have never received a penny from the CWA," he declared, "I have given my time voluntarily and was happy to do it. It meant a financial sacrifice, for I have paid all my expenses when engaged in CWA work."

Just Month Ahead in Divorce Plea

Salem, Jan. 11—Anxiety to get a divorce sent Jeremiah J. Quill of Newburyport, former Salisbury policeman, into court a month ahead of time. He had given considerable testimony concerning desertion by Mrs. Lillian A. Quinn when it was revealed he brought suit at the expiration of only two years and 11 months instead of three years.

... Again we believe we have rendered our customers an outstanding service in presenting as a new but permanent feature of our bedding department

"Red Cross" MATTRESSES

Custom-built for Stearns

$29.50 and $39.50

There are no finer inner-spring mattresses made in this country than "RED CROSS." It is because of the quality-integrity of the makers of "Red Cross" that we went to them and had them custom-build to our order two qualities which we could present to our customers with pride and value assurance. Each mattress has superior inner coil springs that will not sag or break down at the edges. Each has plenty of breathing perforations at the sides which promote sanitation. Each has inserted metal handles at the sides to facilitate "turning." The inner built coils are made of spring wire. Your body is buoyed up on them as though it rested on a cushion of air. Coverings are of quality heavy ticking in a choice of patterns and colors. In our bedding department, third floor, you may see the inner construction of these mattresses.

This Is Life
—By Robert E. Rogers—

NEXT MONDAY begins the actual work of the Emergency Campaign of 1934, with a mass meeting in Symphony Hall. Last Monday the men and women who will do the work of raising $4,500,000 listened to a group of eminent speakers who covered from all angles this difficult and necessary work. On the spirit and intelligence of the workers will depend some of the results of the campaign. But the rest, the greater part, will depend on you all who are reading such statements as this.

It is a platitude to say that effective sympathy varies directly with the distance between the need and the supply. One's feeling of responsibility is very great when the need is in one's immediate family, or among one's kinsfolk, one's personal friends, one's immediate dependents, or among those in want whose situation has been brought home to one by some accident. It is even somewhat difficult to feel any sense of responsibility toward one's great-grandchildren, whom, like as not, one will never see.

Aid Record Is High

THAT IS THE THEORY. Nevertheless, the record of America in helping generously whole populations half across the world is an extraordinary one. The flood sufferers of the Mississippi Basin, the victims of earthquakes in California, Calabria, Japan, as well as those destroyed by flood or plague in China, have reason to remember the bounty of the American people. In Pearl Buck's latest volume of short stories there is a tale called "Flood" which expresses poignantly the despair of destitution and the hope revived by outside help.

Of late years the amount our people have been able to spare has been unavoidably cut down by the shrinking of our surplus. Yet it is incredible that we should feel it necessary to flit down on the aid for our own people. If we had any exact picture of the needs of our neighbors in Boston—for they are our neighbors—we can hardly avoid doing, even under difficulties, what we have rejoiced doing for people of different civilizations, colors, religions, thousands of miles away.

The campaign is for the relief of Boston. But such a large proportion of our suburban citizens draw their living from Boston business, depend so entirely on Boston resources and privileges that on such an occasion we must think that this campaign is quite as much a responsibility for Metropolitan Boston as for the city itself. Furthermore, as you will learn in the days to come, the charitable and medical resources of Boston are made available so generously to the suburban citizens that there exists a moral, if not a legal obligation, to help sustain the charities of the metropolis. Without Boston our surrounding cities would be mean villages; most of them derive their population, trade and wealth from their relation to the greater city.

Erroneous Notion

THE GREAT DIFFICULTY this year is the growing conviction in peoples' minds that the enormous expenditures of the Federal government for public works, re-employment and the like, under traditional, private help by one group of citizens to another group of citizens unnecessary, almost an impertinence. That notion is erroneous and short-sighted. We can accomplish any government except the most local, can do only a small part of what private agencies must do. It can only expend money in the largest and most general way, on nation-wide projects which have little relation to local and individual needs. Government projects are general rather than specific, impersonal rather than personal, inevitably extravagant and routine rather than economical and individual.

The many organizations that here combine to raise a budget which in time of need is actually smaller than the charitable budgets in times of prosperity are all directed to specific and immediate needs. Some of these organizations are very old, of excellent reputation for conscientious and economical expenditure of private funds. Their work is done by personal investigation which tries to match individual help to individual need. They seek not merely to keep people alive and sheltered, as by the welfare or the public works program, but to supply many wants and needs in such a way as to make life more worth living for people who are on the edge of bitter distress. They seek to preserve health, to keep families together, to help adults and children to have those aids to self respect which sustain ambition and keep the foundations of society from crumbling for lack of social cement. Their aid is spiritual, not merely physical.

Must Not Fail

MANY OF US look forward to a time when government may return to its traditionally normal functions and leave the relief of distress to private wealth and good will. If such campaigns as this Emergency Campaign of 1934 fail, the hand of collectivism is strengthened, and more will to our fellow will be enforced at the pistol point of taxation, and that human brotherhood of which the record of the Red Cross Community Chests are such splendid examples will tend to atrophy for lack of exercise. If only for the protection of the American tradition this campaign must not fail.

Our first job is to listen conscientiously to what we are told about the bitter needs of our neighbors. Our second is to help relieve those needs to the very utmost of our power.

Doggerel Days
—By Oliver Herford—

WHAT the Earl of Oxford (alias William Shakespeare) meant by "dog will have his day" is something no two scholars will ever agree about. Not that it is very important that any two scholars should ever agree about anything.

I'm no Shakespearean scholar. I am too fond of the Bard (in spots) to schol about him. But why Shakespeare makes Hamlet spout such arrant doggerel over Ophelia's grave is more than I can follow. And yet

"Let Hercules himself do what he may,
The cat will mew, and dog will have his day."

would be quite perfect in its way if it read

"Let Hercules himself do what he may,
The cat will mew, the day will have its doggerel."

That is my reading, and I think everyone will agree that while it preserves the inherent tinge of insanity inseparable from the original conception, it throws a much desired light upon the passion for semi-idiotic Elizabethan doggerel that was rife among the very best minds of the day.

THE argument in support of the accepted reading "dog will have his day" is ingenious but far fetched. It is based upon the ancient ruling that every dog is entitled to one bite; that is to say, it shall not for that first offense be deemed a vicious or evil-tempered beast. A second bite, so reads the law, "shews himme to bee a bloodie and devilishe dogge which must be kept tyed uppe, and if he bite a third time he shall be put to death."

For the above citation I have had to rely entirely upon a memory which is none of the best, but I am given to understand that the same law is in force both in America and England today. Nevertheless, while admitting that the point is well taken I feel constrained to adhere to my reading of the passage, "The day will have its doggerel."

YOU may turn up your nose at Doggerel but it is true, just the same, that when the Great Ones of our day have been locked into bed in Westminster Abbey and the Hall of Fame, lain there a few thousand years and comfortably forgotten, the jolly little nursery Doggerels that brought joy and laughter to our childhood and the childhood of our parents and grandparents will be skipping around and wagging their tails as merrily as ever.

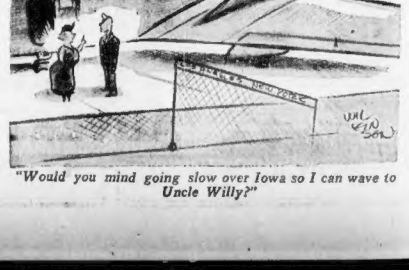
TODAY Doggerel has waxed friskier than ever before. It has now the backing of Big Business, or perhaps I should say big Printing Houses that have employed great little Geniuses to invent sentimental subjects for jiggy rhymes for every day in the year.

The most popular of these "Days" are "Mother's Day," which has become a national festival. After this comes a procession of all the rest of the family—Father's Day Uncle's Day, Auntie's Day and Sister's Day (the prettiest of all, I imagine, though I have yet to see it).

Each of these Doggerels comes on a gracefully decorated card and it is hardly possible to imagine a day that has been overlooked.

I received the other day a birthday card from Cecelia Loftus sent intentionally two days late so as to make use of a card entitled "Belated Greetings." Upon its cover was displayed a gay little sheep and beneath it the inscription, "I Feel a Bit Sheepish for Being So Late."

What will be the next Thought of the Card Genius?



"Would you mind going slow over Iowa so I can wave to Uncle Willy?"

Toast Killer Problem
—By Frank Sullivan—

IT WILL be interesting to watch the outcome of the trial of the young wife who did her husband to death in an argument over burned toast; at least it would be if I hadn't lost the clipping containing the locale, and the names of the affected parties. I set the clipping aside, and when I set a clipping aside, boy, it STAYS set aside. However, those of the readers of this page who are themselves toast slayers will know the case I mean.

It is of intercst to lawyers because the defendant is the burner of the toast. Usually it is the burner who is the corpse, while the burnee is the accused. Things may go hard with the girl unless her lawyers can prove, or can even mention, that she burned the toast in a fit of pique on learning that her husband had fallen in love with another woman. In that case, no jury will convict. If it is, however, a plain case of premeditated toast burning, she may burn.

Notch for Each Burn

THESE toast slayings are undoubtedly on the increase, and none of the attempts to solve the problem seems to have been of any avail. Statistics prove that every single morning of the year, in some house somewhere in the United States, a husband picks up a piece of charred bread and snarls "Toast burned again, eh!" Then there is a flash of a dagger, or the sound of a pistol shot, or the indignant gurgle of a female being involuntarily garrotted. And another notch is added to the record of the fiend we call Toast.

Strangely enough these toast slayings are commoner among Nordics than among Latins. You would think that the hot-blooded Southerner would be quicker to resent the affront implied in a piece of burned toast than the phlegmatic Northerner. The answer is that the Latin seldom eats toast. But just burn a Sicilian's ravioli on him and see what you get. In writing pieces like this I have to take into account all sorts of ethnographical differences which would not be apparent to the eye of the lay reader. In Michigan alone, during 1933, one hundred and twenty-seven wives were wiped out because of burned toast, as opposed to Arizona, where one hundred and two wives were done in for serving four-minute eggs to two-minute husbands. There were no convictions in either State.

Some Do; Others Don't

THE American Investigation Association appointed a committee in 1929 to investigate the cause of the rising tide of toast slayings but the work of the committee was hampered at first by the fact that inside of two months twelve per cent of its membership was doing time for murdering their wives for burning the breakfast toast. The remainder of the committee set to work with a will and sent questionnaires to 1238 housewives who were known toast burners, inquiring as to the motives which cause women to burn toast. The following reasons were given:

Mothers were toast burners (heredity)—179.
Wanted pretty things—452.
"Didn't know it was burned"—79.
Misunderstood by husband—437.
Reading cookbooks wrong side up—139.
Forgot toast was toasting—13.
Led astray by older toast burner—380.
Liked burned toast—122.
Just didn't give a damn—673.

The figures which these revelations produced throughout the country is too recent and too well known to need re-describing. Suffice it to say that the committee, in an effort to do away with toast burning, devised the new-fangled toaster now in vogue, which automatically pops toast from its maw as soon as it is toasted and before it is burned. This is the gadget that flings slices of toast at you when you least expect them, like as not hitting you in the beezer, or landing in your coffee.

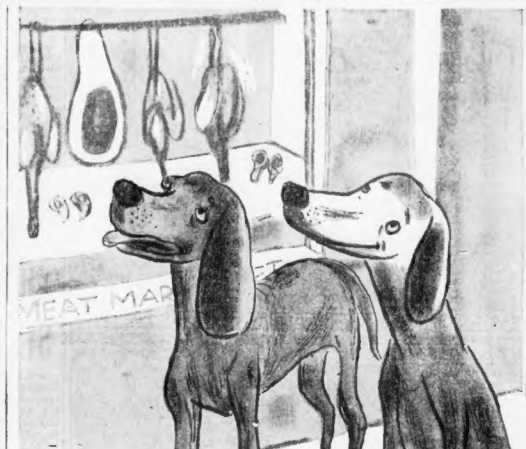
Now It Hurts You

NOW, matters are as bad, if not worse, than before. At least the toast was stationary in the old days. Now it's flying around every breakfast nook in the land at a fine old rate, and rebounds, emerging for breakfast in a not too amiable frame of mind, are terrified and infuriated and, in many cases, suffer black eyes from flying toast.

The next article in this series will deal with the problem of wives and sweethearts who disarrange the morning paper hopelessly before their men read it, and who tear out great sections of department store ads on the other side of which contains the racing chart, or the latest on that fiend murder you wanted to keep posted on. Said he, as he ended a sentence with a preposition.



"That's the ham I was telling you about."

A Number of Things
—By Charles Hanson Towne—

NO ONE, since the Eighteenth Amendment was rescinded, has been busier than Julian Street. He has been asked by innumerable editors to tell ignorant Americans the right wines to serve at dinners, to give lists of the best vintage years, to discuss the products of France and Germany, Spain and Italy; and it was only natural that he should produce a book on a subject that has always greatly interested him, and which will not interest a vast public. Thus we have "Wines," from his delightful pen, published by Alfred Knopf.

Here is the authoritative volume, the last word in excellent and sound advice. Not only is it an informative book, it is an absorbingly interesting one. The history and nature of wine is put down. Did you know, for instance, that the Chinese were among the first people to make wine, and that none is produced in their country today? The Chinese practised viticulture from 2000 B. C. until the fourteenth Century of our era. Then, by an Imperial edict, the production was prohibited. The Persians also claim first honors, and wine making with them is an ancient art. But perhaps in Egypt and Mesopotamia the first wines were made as early as 3000 B. C. It is interesting to learn that the early Romans preferred Greek wine to that of their own country.

WE HAVE much to learn—to re-learn would be more accurate. Think of this advice handed out by a much publicized New York hotel functionary recently in a public talk: "His first recommendation," says Mr. Street, "was a gin cocktail. Bad. Second, he advised Sauternes with oysters. Bad. Third, Sherry with clear soup. Well enough as a unit, but Sherry should not occur in the course after Sauternes. What are we to expect," he cries, "when a supposed authority proposed such grotesqueries? We are to expect that a lot of Sauternes will be sold here and that a lot of people will dine badly."

There is a certain ignorance and vulgarity in serving nothing but champagne throughout a meal. Mr. Street contends that champagne is far from being the aristocrat of wines.

"The trouble is," says Mr. Street, "that the average American has always thought of wine as a thing apart from food. He has thought of it very much as he migh. think of a soda fountain drink. Ginger ale is a refreshing straw colored beverage with bubbles in it, and so is champagne. Honey is sweet and golden and so is Chateau Yquem. A cherry phosphate is cool, effervescent, ruby colored; and sparkling Burgundy—a wine abhorred by epicures—is pretty much the same thing plus a costly and celestial kick. Cocktails, whiskey and beer may be considered as drinks independent of food, but wine belongs to the dinner table as definitely as do sauces and dressings. Food is the tune, wine the accompaniment. Neither is complete without the other."

That is sound common sense. I do not see how it could be stated better. But it is astonishing how few Americans know that a red wine should never be served before a white wine, nor a red Burgundy before a claret, nor a sweet wine before a dry wine.

At the end of his book there are given many menus for luncheons, dinners and suppers. Some of these have been contributed by epicure friends of the author. Of course the right wines to serve are included. One may pore over these as over a cook book by Savarin and get a vicarious enjoyment.

Here is the ideal volume to have in your library, now that Prohibition has been vanquished. The dedication to the author's wife is as charming as the contents. It reads:

To Margot,
A Gourmet in Spite of Herself.

Letters I'd Love to Mail
—By J. P. McEvoy—

Woodstock, N. Y., Jan. 10.

TO My Creditors
Doorstep, U. S. A.

My friends: Dawns the New Year when the Chinese pay all their debts and look where they are. In China. And where are you? Not in China, more's the pity.

That isn't exactly what I started out to say. Dawns the New Year and here am I and there are you, and we look at each other fixedly and think our separate thoughts. You, I suppose are wondering when I will pay you. Oddly enough, I am thinking the same thing. Quite a coincidence, what?

And yet, I am thinking other things, too. I am thinking how bored you must be. Once it was something to be a creditor. It was swank. People looked up to you. "He's a creditor," they would say in awe. "He has thousands of dollars out at interest. That farm over there is mortgaged to him. His safety deposit vault is full of notes. Everybody owes him money."

EVERYBODY owes everybody money. There is no class any more in being a creditor. It's common. Ordinary. A bit de trop, if you ask me.

I know you have been feeling sorry for me. Doesn't it surprise you to know that I am feeling sorry for you? Lost in the mob, no individuality any more. I pity you. How hath the mighty fallen!

There was a time when you could get a thrill out of the hunt. You barked and we ran. You snarled and we cowered. You started in pursuit and we fled over hill and dale, our little hearts pounding until we thought they would burst. What a gay, happy time that was for you. Those good old days. How you must miss them.

NOW you bark and we bark right back. You snarl and we spit. You start to chase us and we turn on you and run up a tree. Poor old creditor, who cares how much you huff and puff? Blow the old house in. It isn't paid for. It never will be.

Go on huffing until you're blue in the face and puff until you're green. It will keep you busy.

And when all the houses are blown to bits, where is your first mortgage and your second and third and chattel? So you're a creditor, eh? So what?

Yes, I feel sorry for you. I used to be a creditor, too. It was great fun. Now I am a debtor. All my best friends are debtors. All their friends are debtors. What good times we have. Smoke curls out of your chimneys. Lights blaze in our windows. Our houses are gay with music and loud with laughter. Your houses, I mean. But we live in them. Try to get in. Try to get us out.

Sad, silly old creditors. How I pity you.

Sincerely,
J. P. McEVOY.

City Woman

SOMETIMES when lonely for a glimpse of sky,
I find that I am reaching for your hand
In hope that you, perhaps, will understand
An urge that is world-old, and heaven-high.
Sometimes, at night, when dreamlessly I lie
Within a wall of houses, snugly planned,
I turn to you—as, in a foreign land
One seeks a friend among the passers-by. . . .

There is a need that prayer will seldom still.
That even passion will not lull to rest—
And so, although my tired head may rest
Above your heart, my soul strives on until
It finds the vista that, of all, is best—

Vagabondia
—By Bruno Lessing—

ROME—If you stroll up the Via di Monte Tarpeo and get lost several times and then find a garden where they charge you a lira to enter, they will point out to you what is left of the Tarpeian rock. Houses are built all around and much of the land has been leveled off. But in the ancient days there was a steep cliff on this spot called the Tarpeian Cliff, and from the rock on the summit criminals were hurled to death to a pavement below. Byron called it

"The promontory whence the Traitor's Leap cured all ambition."

When anyone was thrown from the rock a tremendous crowd would gather in the Forum from which the face of the cliff was clearly visible. The Romans had many ways of killing prisoners, but there are no clear records that show any consistency in fitting the punishment to the crime. Many traitors to the State were thrown from the Tarpeian Rock, but others were crucified, beheaded, thrown to wild beasts or left to starve in the Mamertine prison.

Plutarch tells how, in the reign of Tiberius, a chap named Lucius Pituanius was thrown from the Tarpeian Rock—the last authentic record. This Lucius was a magician and an astrologer whose prophecies had misled people and got them into trouble. What a business the Tarpeian Rock would have done in U. S. A. if we punished fake prophets that way! We would probably have established branch rocks next door to most banks and brokerage offices.

And what a neat, simple and inexpensive way it would be to get rid of kidnapers, gangsters and other undesirables.

It was this same cliff that the Gauls were climbing to attack the citadel when the garrison was awakened by the squawking of the sacred geese of Juno. It was a captain named Manlius who first rushed out and pushed the invaders over the cliff, thereby saving Rome. He became a great hero and, like many another hero, got the swelled head. He was finally accused of trying to make himself king and was thrown from that same rock himself.

To this day, however, the Romans are very fond of roast goose.

Beauty Revels in Sun

STROLLED down the Corso and came to the Victor Emmanuel II monument. This is the one big monument in Rome that often gets on my nerves, so I decided to give it a careful inspection and find out why. It is so big and conspicuous that wherever you wander about the city you are sure, at the end of some street, to glimpse some side of it. It's exact figures are 443 feet wide, 426 feet deep and 430 feet high. It took a quarter of a century to build and cost over $10,000,000. It is a series of wide steps and terraces rising toward a huge marble background. On a high pedestal in the center is a gilded bronze statue of Victor Emmanuel on horseback. Here also is the tomb of the Unknown Soldier and two sentinels are always on guard. You can see bronze doors high up on each side leading, they say, to rooms full of statues but I wasn't going to climb a thousand steps to find out. Everywhere there are bas-reliefs—battle scenes and allegorical figures.

As I looked at it today it seemed quite impressive on account of the sunlight and it got on my nerves. Then I suddenly remembered that it was a gloomy day, with a gray, sullen sky—I often sit out for hours without noticing the weather unless it begins to rain—and I knew why this monument sometimes irritates me. It is made all of dazzling white Brescian marble and when the sun shines brightly, as it usually does in Rome, it actually hurts your eyes to look at it for any length of time. Its coloring was somewhat softened today. The worst of it is that this Brescian marble does not lose its whiteness with the years, like Carrara and other marbles.

Back Like the Forum

FROM a modern standpoint there is probably not a finer monument in the world. Its design is artistic and all its countless details are well executed. But the average visitor to Rome does not come to see modern monuments. He wants to see the monuments of the ancients that have been mellowed and softened and hallowed by time and evoke the spirit of the slumbering past. He wants a peep into the life of the Caesars. Whereas it is less than 75 years ago that Victor Emmanuel II entered Rome as the first king of modern Italy.

Of course I'm not complaining. The Romans are just as eager to be up-to-date as the rest of us and are not going to halt their progress to please tourists and archaeologists. But if I have to look at that monument in the summer time, I'm going to carry a parasol.

The back of the monument looks upon the Roman Forum. Its front faces the palace in which Mussolini has his offices. What a pity that Victor Emmanuel cannot turn his head, gaze first at one and then at the other, and tell what he thinks of it all.

Winter Stillness

THE snow has made the hemlock boughs
Heavy as pine or fir.
Dark trees, hooded and cloaked with white,
Grow taller, statelier.

The stillness after deep snowfall
Is sweeter, (O do not shake
The burdened, sagging branch,
Nor start away, nor speak.)

High on this hemlock-guarded bank
Silence itself seems listening like
A listener in a dream.

Silence, breathless, waiting, too
In the pure, deep drifted snow,
Hearing something we cannot hear,
Something we know we know.

INJURY RISKS COME HIGH TO ARTISTS

In these days, ranging from depression to incipient recovery, even the men and women of America who have nothing left but their health are what is termed—in the money.

All of the physical machinery of their being has a price—variously estimated by juries, insurance companies and assorted defendants.

LIMB COSTS RUN HIGH

Briefly, in these days of trials, a very high rate of exchange exists on the evaluation of injured or lost physical properties, including eyes, ears, limbs and even beauty.

Albert S. Stevens of Wollaston, salesman for a steel company, was awarded $13,750 by a Suffolk County jury for the loss of an arm. At the same time a jury at Bangor, Me., was awarding a mere $90 for the loss of an ear, suffered by Victor Saucier, in the discussion of a farm problem with one of his more demonstrative neighbors.

Practically at the same hour Miss Mingon Laird, of New York City filed an action against John Alex, of East Haven, Connecticut for $75,000, alleging loss of beauty as a result of an auto accident, charging him with the responsibility for the collision.

BEAUTY ASKS $250,000

This week in New York the action of Aileen Wenzel against Louis J. Ehret is on the docket. Miss Wenzel, famed as the most beautiful brunette show girl on Broadway, charges that her beauty has vanished as a result of a collision when she was a passenger in the car of Mr. Ehret, millionaire brewer. She asks $250,000.

Throughout the country in vastly increased volume, since the popularity of motoring, there is a grist of action at law based upon the loss of limbs, health, beauty and faculties, through the alleged carelessness of assorted defendants, and out of that grist comes activity for courts, lawyers, physicians, police and insurance factors.

In fact so risky a world do we live in that vast sums in premiums are paid for insurance against the injury of skilled hands, beautiful legs, throats from which issue silver notes and other physical assets in unlimited number.

The hands of Paderewski, world famed pianist, the legs of Mistinguette and the throat of Bing Crosby are but items in a vast volume of protective insurance. Each of these artists carries insurance of $100,000 as a protective barrier against the loss on income through injury of their physical assets.

It would seem in this reckless day and age that one must watch his step, or at least keep up his premiums.

What Price Art's Glory? It's Priceless!

MISTINGUETTE

Nation-wide flood of suits for loss of limbs and faculties offers ample incentive for the insurance of notables of the stage, screen and professions against injuries which would terminate great incomes and cancel extensive tours by favorites.

NEW PROBE IN TRUCK STRIKE

Washington, aJn. 11 (AP)—The National Labor board today was studying for the third time, the western Massachusetts trucking strike, which ir ordered terminated December 28.

The trucking strike has been one of the most troublesome before the board.

Since then, attaches of the board said today, there had been a partial acceptance and a partial rejec by the truck owners.

The Truckmen's Union was said to have charged that the employers, instead of rehiring all the strikers as ordered, had offered to only 63 full time jobs, although 78 were available.

HOLIDAYS BOOM STORE SALES

Washington, Jan. 11 (INS)—The Christmas holiday trade showed substantial increases over last year in practically all Federal Reserve districts and gained over November by even more than the seasonal volume, it was announced today.

The Federal Reserve Board's survey for December indicated that department store sales for the country as a whole were 7 per cent greater than in the same month of 1932, although for the year there was a decline of 5 per cent.

The report was based on the business of 444 stores in 214 leading cities.

Agricultural districts of the country showed much more progress than industrial sections.

Sales for the entire year in the Boston district decreased 8 per cent, however.

'EUGENIC BABY' STILL IN PERIL

Ayer, Jan. 11 (AP)—Roscoe Alls, 5, Chicago's "eugenic baby" of 1928, remained in a critical condition in the Community Hospital today, suffering from injuries received in an automobile collision Tuesday night.

He has a severe concussion and a serious scalp wound.

His mother, Kate Pullman, 35, vaudeville actress, has been in an hysterical condition since the accident, and visitors to her at the hospital have been prohibited. She received a severe scalp wound and a knuckle was broken.

They were passengers in a car operated by Jack McCloskey, vaudeville actor, who was killed when the automobile hit a truck.

ITALY BANISHES DEMOCRACY

Rome, Jan. 11 (AP)—Italy's final definite repudiation of "every liberal and democratic principle" was announced by Count Cesare Maria de Vecchi in reporting to the Senate today as head of a special committee appointed to study the nation's new corporative law.

He said by its adoption Italy "affirms the absolute supremacy of spirit over material things."

Count De Vecchi, one of Premier Mussolini's four chief lieutenants in the march on Rome, now is ambassador to the Vatican.

The new corporative system is to be discussed in the Senate tomorrow and, after approval, which is assured, goes to the Chamber of Deputies.

$4,000,000 U. S. Bank Accounts Insured

Washington, Jan. 11 (INS)—Individual bank accounts numbering 54,000,000 in 13,431 institutions in every section of the United States have been insured up to $2500 by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, Chairman Walter J. Cummings announced today.

House and Senate Cafes to Stay Dry

Washington, Jan. 11 (AP)—Prohibition may come and go, but the House and Senate will remain dry, if not forever, at least indefinitely.

Not even 3.2 beer is sold in the Senate and Senate office building restaurants, although the House restaurant serves it.

RADIO FOLLOWING OF RUDY VALLEE HOLDS

By N. F. T.

Fate has tagged this Vallee chap alright, with the tag reading "romance" and hear ye, that's not static! Turn the tag over and there "success" is also stamped.

No six-month period of the last two or three years would be quite complete without uncovering some very definitely disturbing developments having to do with his love life. Naturally the question arises—does all this injure the Vallee radio prestige? It's not altogether surprising how many individuals ask this question. When the futile attempt is made to avoid any argument with a casual expression, such as it is but natural for a dapper male radio celebrity to have marital upsets, these well-meaning patrons elevate eyebrows to ask why nothing of the sort crops up in the careers of Bing Crosby, Lanny Ross, Morton Downey, Russ Columbo, Art Jarrett, Jack Fulton or others.

WHO KNOWS WHY?

Next everybody concerned wants to know how an advantage can be figured. Reasonable proof or else repudiation of the above assertion about current separation and divorce actions helping Rudy, may most effectively be brought to light this very night. Walk down a selected at random street or two in your town and mine between 8 and 9 o'clock. What will you hear? Probably more loudspeakers than ever will be tuned in (WEEI) on the blonde "heart interest" crooner.

Fate would appear to be managing the business as well as sentimental affairs of Rudy Vallee. As for doing a good job, that's strictly a matter of individual viewpoint. In my event, one of the important tunes Rudy has scheduled for this evening is "We'll Make Hay While the Sun Shines" from "Going Hollywood," the striking Marion Davies-Bing Crosby screen production.

WHAT, NO NEW DEAL?

Henry D. Sharpe, president of the New England Council, takes a Yankee network "mike" turn tonight (WNAC) at 8 o'clock and will discuss "The New England Council and the New Year" for 15 minutes. While not including the "New Deal" in his labeling of the address, Mr. Sharpe will probably not overlook it while speaking.

STOP THAT COLD TODAY!

Tomorrow May Make It Twice as Difficult to Relieve!

The time to stop a cold is before it gets started! A cold once rooted is a cold of danger! Don't waste your time and run the risk of serious complications by using make-shift methods.

Remember, a cold is an internal infection and, as such, calls for internal treatment. A cold also calls for a COLD remedy and not a preparation good for a number of other things besides colds.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is what a cold requires. It is expressly a cold remedy. It is internal and direct. It is complete in effect. It does the four things necessary. First, it opens the bowels, gently but thoroughly. Second, it combats the cold germs in the system and reduces the fever. Third, it relieves the headache and grippy feeling. Fourth, it tones the entire system and fortifies against further attack. Anything less than that is taking chances.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine contains nothing harmful and is absolutely safe to take. For more than forty years it has been the standard cold and grippe tablet of the world, the formula always keeping pace with Modern Medicine.

Every druggist sells Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine, 30c and 50c. Good druggists won't try to talk you into a substitute for the sake of a few pennies extra profit.

When you feel a cold coming on get busy at once. Go right to your druggist for Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine. Always ask for it by the full name and look for the letters L B Q stamped on every tablet.

ECONOMY HEADS IN DRIVE ON ROOSEVELT

The address of Carl P. Dennett before the Employers' Association of Eastern Massachusetts at the Chamber of Commerce last night was being generally interpreted today as the opening shot of an attack by the National Economy League of President Roosevelt's economic policies.

In his talk Dennett declared that the President's policies have brought progress toward recovery to a definite halt by their throwing a cloud of doubt over business by his ideas on economic and monetary courses.

He asserted the budget must be balanced and enormous expenditures brought under control. The alternative, he declared, would mean the break-down of the national credit under the strain placed upon it. The printing press would have to be resorted to in order that the nation might pay its bills, he said.

He said that at the present time business men were faced with a situation of "destructive uncertainty," consisting of known facts and fallacies. He declared the known facts were causing fear and doubt while the fallacies were resulting in destructive hesitancy to business men.

He listed the known facts as follows:

While the President is committed by his address to sound money, he has been given authority to inflate the currency, print paper money, remonetize silver and reduce the gold content of the dollar.

The dollar has been debased in international exchange 40 per cent.

If we return to a gold basis we do not know what the gold content of the dollar will be.

The federal government is spending sums vastly greater than have ever before been spent in time of peace.

For the past two years, on official estimates, the national debt will have increased at the average rate of over $14,000,000 per day, and for the current fiscal year at the rate of over $20,000,000 per day.

The recent attempt by the federal government to refund the fourth liberty loan was a failure.

700 TO HONOR SELVITELLA

An impressive testimonial program has been arranged by friends of Henry Selvitella, of East Boston, a newly elected member of the City Council.

More than 700 are expected to attend the banquet for Selvitella at the Hotel Bradford this evening. An elaborate program of entertainment and speakers has been arranged.

The list of invited guests is headed by Mayor Frederick Mansfield, ex-Mayor John F. Fitzgerald, Councilman-at-large Henry Selvitella said, Council president John F. Dowd, and Vincent Brogna.

6 Years for Larceny

Bridgeport, Conn., Jan. 11—Bela Szabo, 30, of New York and Norwalk, who was arrested in Quebec several months ago, was sentenced to state's prison for four to six years after pleading guilty to a charge of larceny.

Birth Control Advocate Scoffs at "Depopulation"

New York, Jan. 10—There is no reason for alarm over a threatened depopulation of the country by a declining birthrate.

One of the world's foremost biologists, Dr. Norman Haire, shown a statement of Dr. O. E. Baker, economist of the Department of Agriculture, that "if the present trend of depopulation increases, in 1970 there will be no children at all in the United States," told Universal Service today:

"When the population becomes thinner, people will be less harried, have more comfort and ease, and will automatically propagate more. We need have no worries about there being no children born in the future."

Dr. Haire, Englishman, and one of the executives of the World League for sexual reform, is in this country to attend a council of birth control advocates and perhaps testify in Washington when a bill permitting birth control literature to be distributed come before a congressional committee for consideration. He said:

"I have always maintained that no woman, rich or poor, should have more children than she wishes. To those who point out that Keats came out of poverty-stricken people, I answer that I would prefer no Keats to 100 tubercular children."

IF YOU GET UP NIGHTS

USE BUCHU AND GIN

Make This 25c Test

It is as valuable to the bladder as castor oil to the bowels. Drives out impurities and excess acids which cause the irritation resulting in getting up nights, burning, frequent desire, leg pains and backache. On account of the alcohol use Juniper oil from which gin is made. Ask for Buchu, the bladder laxative, also containing buchu leaves, etc. After four days, if not pleased your druggist will return your 25c. You are bound to sleep better after this cleansing. Sold by all druggists. Distributed by Keller Company, Mechanicsburg, Ohio.

New School to Stress Pleas for Cash

By FRED PERKINS

An unprecedented instruction course in "painless extraction" is to open in Boston Monday, Jan. 15.

It won't be tooth-pulling, however, that the students will learn. It will be a tougher technique than that—the technique of extracting from Greater Boston pockets $1,500,000 for non-governmental charities.

There's no disagreement, fortunately, about the worthiness of the cause to which the cash, when collected, goes. Beneficiaries, primarily, will be 110 of the city's charitable agencies, associated for money raising purposes in a central organization, the 1934 Emergency Campaign.

Secondary beneficiaries, of course, will be the thousands, maybe tens of thousands, of depression and misfortune victims who are aided annually by privately supported hospitals, medical centers, social service groups and philanthropic institutions.

SCHOOL FOR CANVASSERS

But $4,500,000 is a lot of money. A lot any time. And especially now.

So Emergency Campaign directors aren't going to entrust collections and solicitations to well-meaning but untrained volunteers.

Sure, they're going to use those volunteers, hundreds of them, including socially, financially and professionally prominent men and women of Boston and surrounding communities.

But they're going to school them first in the ethics and practices of asking for cash and getting you for an answer.

Faculty head and director-in-chief of the "painless extraction" college will be Paul F. Clark, high pressure insurance man of the Paul F. Clark agency, 1 Federal st. He'll have as his assistant and head instructor, Howard Crandall Manson, veteran trainer of salesmen for some of New England's biggest corporations.

MUST LEARN SALESMANSHIP

Instructor Mason, in turn, will engage as members of his teaching staff a group of Greater Boston sales specialists.

To regular classes of the money-extraction school, thus staffed and organized, will come, ten days from now, a student body the likes of which Boston hasn't previously seen.

There'll be men and women, young and old, from the city's most famous families from long established business houses, and from charitable, religious, and educational institutions.

But they'll all have to learn, so Clark declared today, the ABC's of salesmanship. They'll have to learn that it's crusty old bachelors that love to endow children's hospitals. And that staid and virtuous church folk get a kick out of endowments for refuges for wayward girls.

It'll be such a school as never before has been established in Boston. If its alumni can't collect $4,500,000, then nobody can, says "Professor" Clark. And he ought to know.

He's looking forward to opening day, on Monday, the 15th of January. So are directors of the Emergency Campaign.

Early workers, recruited for the Jan. 15 "offensive" include the following: Metropolitan chairmen Frederick W. Hill, of Arlington; Mrs. Charles Thompson, of Andover; Miss May Wood, of Bedford; Mrs. Percy Dewey, of Belmont; George Bramwell Baker, of Brookline; William Donnison Swan, Jr., of Cambridge; Edward M. R. Revere, of Canton; Henry S. Thompson, of Concord; George C. Lee, Jr., of Dedham and Westwood.

Pipes Gas Into Car to End His Life

New Bedford, Jan. 11—Lewis M. Brooks, 51, who came to this city two years ago from Worcester, was found dead in his auto of carbon monoxide poisoning.

A piece of hose had been used to divert the car's exhaust into the closed machine, and Medical Examiner Daniel P. O'Brien pronounced Brooks a suicide. The car had been concealed at least 24 hours behind a billboard.

Rocco Quits Fire Post in Everett

Ending four years of service Fire Commissioner John J. Rocco of the Everett fire board will retire from office today. Rocco tendered his resignation last week to Mayor Roche but was asked to remain in office until the recent purge was completed. The commissioner agreed but asked that his resignation become effective today.

CAR SALE TREND BOOM-LIKE

By M. E. COYLE

General Manager, Chevrolet Motor Company

The trend in Chevrolet sales over the last half of 1933 as compared with our experience in the past several years gives us great encouragement as to our position in 1934.

To find a parallel to 1933 we have to go back to 1926. In this eight-year space were four good years and four bad ones. In the first of the good years, 1926, our sales in the last six months were practically equal to those of the first half year.

M. E. Coyle

In 1927 55 per cent of our total year's sales fell into the first half; in 1928, when we were out of the market in late autumn while getting our six-cylinder car ready for introduction, the first half accounted for 61 per cent of the total; and in 1929, 57 per cent.

In 1930, however, the first half percentage jumped to 62 of the year's total, a trend which got more severe as the depression deepened. In 1931 it rose still farther to 63 per cent. And in 1932 it touched the extreme point of 67 per cent. We sold more than twice as many cars before July 1 than from that date to the close of the year.

But in the year just ended came the abrupt back-swing. In the first half of 1933 our retail sales accounted for only 52 per cent of the year's total despite the fact that for two of the last six months we had no new cars to sell.

The national bank holiday severely checked the normal development of the market last spring and delayed some sales until after July 1. But whether this dip was sufficient to offset two autumn months without cars is highly debatable. At any rate, the record stands—sales in the four months from July through October only 10 per cent below six months' sales from January to July—a performance not approached since 1926.

When we established our manufacturing schedule last summer for the last part of the year we thought we set a figure amply high. We added to sales for the last half of 1933 an additional 110,000 units, practically doubling the figure for the previous year. Yet the great strength of the retail market was so far above expectations that by late September dealers ran short of certain models. By November 1 this shortage was general.

We believe that for Chevrolet the strong trend of last fall will continue. We are optimistic over the outlook. We have embarked on a 1934 program considerably above the 625,000 cars and trucks we built in 1933.

Spain's High Court to Free Americans

Madrid, Jan. 11 (AP)—The Supreme Court today reviewed the case of five Americans involved in the alleged assault of a civil guard last year at Palma, Mallorca. It was said the court probably would uphold their acquittal by a military court last October.

The Americans are Mr. and Mrs. Clinton B. Lockwood of West Springfield, Mass.; Roderick F. Mead of New York, Edmund W. Stedgett of Stamford, Ct., and Rutherford Fullerton of Columbus, O.

Don't take calomel!

HERE'S NEW HEALTH FOR YOUR LIVER

Now banish bad breath, pimples, constipation; feel like a million!

That tired, frowsy feeling in the morning, that "dark brown" taste in the mouth—if you would banish them and win back buoyant health, don't expect relief from salts, mineral oil, or candy and chewing-gum laxatives.

For such remedies only move the bowels. While chances are, you're one of the thousands suffering from sluggish liver which does not yield sufficient bile — causing pimples, blemishes, headaches, bad breath and a general run-down feeling.

What you need is something which acts thoroughly but harmlessly upon the liver. And in Dr Edwards Olive Tablets you will find that "something" which stimulates the bile flow.

A successful substitute for calomel, these famous tablets are compounded of pure vegetable ingredients, and have been praised for years by millions.

To get and keep the bile flowing freely—correcting constipation, skin troubles, and win back that "fine-and-dandy" feeling of youth—go to your druggist for Dr Edwards Olive Tablets today. 15c, 30c, 60c.

MISSING BOYS ON WAY HOME

Florida in winter is no longer an attractive prospect to two Newton youths and the thrills of "life in the raw" do not balance the comforts of home in the opinion of three others.

John Ham, 16, of Watertown st., West Newton, and Marcel Oreans, 18, of Auburn st., Auburndale, who left home Tuesday for Florida, got as far as Mamaroneck, N. Y., where they stopped at the home of relatives. Yesterday they notified their parents they would be home Friday.

John Noble, 14, of Applegarth rd., George Young, 17, of Center st., and Robert Howley, of Rowena rd., who left last Saturday for an adventurous "life in the raw," telegraphed their parents from Louisville, Ky., requesting funds to get them back home. Arrangements were made with transportation agencies to get them back.

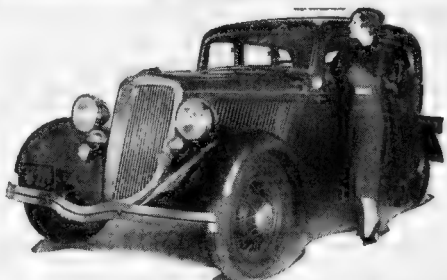
Judge the new FORD V8 on what it will do



Thousands of people who can afford to spend two or three times as much for a car, are today choosing the Ford V-8 for 1934, instead. Here are some of the reasons.

POWER. The Ford V-8 for 1934 gives you better than 80 miles per hour with the quicker acceleration and greater smoothness of an 8-cylinder motor. Power has actually been increased by 12 per cent over last year's model.

COMFORT. The Ford V-8 for 1934 offers more actual body room than many other cars that cost considerably more. It offers you new Clear-Vision Ventilation, with the window in one piece. It offers you free action for all four wheels — plus the comfort of Ford Cantilever Springs and the proved safety of a front axle.

SAFETY. With the new Ford V-8 you get an all-steel body, safety glass, welded steel-spoke wheels, exceptionally low center of gravity and more braking surface per pound of weight than any other American-made car we know of.

ECONOMY. Gasoline economy is increased by two or three miles per gallon with the new Ford V-8. Test runs show that the new engine will give 20 miles per gallon at 45 miles per hour.

Luckies

THE TOBACCO DOES NOT SPILL OUT

Good tobaccos . . . real good tobaccos . . . that's the reason for Lucky Strike's fine, smooth quality. We use only the center leaves of the finest Turkish and domestic tobacco plants. Not the top leaves — because those are under-developed. Not the bottom leaves — because those are inferior in quality. We use only the center leaves — because these are the mildest leaves — fully ripe for perfect smoking. Only these choice tobaccos are used to make Luckies — so round, so firm, so fully packed — and no loose ends to spill out. That's why Luckies are always mild and smooth. That's why always "Luckies please". And don't forget — "It's toasted" — for throat protection — for finer taste.

STATE TO FIND DANGER SPOTS TO AUTOISTS

900 CWA Workers Making a Gigantic Traffic Study

Traffic danger spots in Massachusetts will be mapped as a result of an analysis of thousands of auto accidents, involving personal injuries in 22 cities and towns from 1930 to 1933, by engineers of the Massachusetts highway accident survey. The study is part of the most comprehensive scientific investigation of its kind ever undertaken.

A second state-wide traffic volume census will begin Sunday. Five hundred observers, working under the direction of public works traffic engineers, will be assigned to locations on all numbered highways. This data, together with the accident study, is being compiled to create a definite plan of remedial procedure covering the next decade.

The survey is being made at the request of Gov. Ely under the direction of the M. J. T., in conjunction with the state department of public safety and public works, the governor's council on street and highway safety and the office of the registrar of motor vehicles.

The project was authorized by Joseph W. Barlett, chairman of the state CWA, and already more than 900 workers, many of them engineers who have been unemployed for some time, are taking part in the survey.

A preliminary report states that the chronic law violator is responsible for most of the serious accidents.

30 Vessels Tied Up by Fishing Strike

CUT-RATE SHOP PAINTED FREE

Joseph Angello, Commercial sq., East Weymouth, tonsorial artist, thought for a moment today that he was going blind. He saw spots before his eyes and then everything went black.

Angello rubbed his eyes. Then he rubbed his finger along the show windows of his barber shop. The paint was still wet. During the night the windows and the entire front of the store had been smeared with black paint.

Angello appealed to the police. He has been threatened several times recently, warning him to advance the price of haircuts from 35 cents to the standard quarter. Police are investigating—and Angello is giving the windows the "once over—no powder."

Yes, Jezebel Dashed Powder

Bible Day Ladies Painted Fogg Relics Reveal

Proof that the ladies of Samaria, of the Israelite period, were no strangers to powder and rouge was found among the fragments of the famous "ivory house" of Bible history, now on exhibition in the Fogg Art Museum, Cambridge.

Two of the treasures brought back by Prof. Kirsopp Lake and his associates from Samaria, one-time capital of northern Israel, are two stone powder and rouge bowls.

According to Prof. Lake, the Samarian belles probably used even more rouge and powder than our Helens and Marys do today. As to their method of applying the "beauty helps," Prof. Lake is not so sure. Perhaps they used sticks or their fingers.

So you see, the girls of today have nothing on the girls of the time when Ahab, King of Israel, ruled the palace, and Jezebel of Tyre, his queen, ruled Ahab.

FAKE OFFICER HELD IN PLOT

Charged with attempted extortion and impersonating an officer after he attempted to extort $500 from a restaurant owner in the South End, William F. Fleming, 20, of the Back Bay, was arraigned in the Back Bay, was arrested and jailed early today.

According to police, Fleming entered a restaurant operated by Daniel Lucas at 150 Northampton st., and declared he held a warrant for the man's arrest on charges of operating a pool. He offered to "forget" the arrest, if Lucas would pay him $500.

Lucas told Fleming to come back in 30 minutes and, donning hat and coat, followed the suspect until he encountered Patrolman Edward J. McDonald who arrested the youth.

50 BOYS TO JOIN COLLINS HUNT

Fifty Brookline high school boys will report to the Brookline police station today to volunteer their services in the search for 11-year-old John Collins, who disappeared from his home at 215 Cypress st., Brookline, last Thursday.

The students, under the direction of Lieut. Joseph J. O'Connell, Jr., will make a thorough search in Hammond's Woods and Butterham, the wooded sections of Brookline.

Search by police today extended to all empty houses and buildings in the neighborhood of the missing boy's home.

BANK AUCTIONS HOUSE WITH WREATH

Red Flag Is Unfurled Before Undertaker Leaves Place

Inside the house the medical examiner and an undertaker leaned over the body of a man. Only a short time previously the body had been found hanging in the house a house whose impending loss was one of the reasons for the suicide.

Outside the house, as the medical examiner and the undertaker viewed the body, four men arrived in an auto, one of their number unfurled an auctioneer's red flag—and, death or no death within, bankers prepared to bid in the house.

FAIL TO STOP SALE

Only today was the story revealed to the Boston Evening American by Jacob H. Levine, undertaker, at 204 Washington st., Dorchester, who was in the house on Roseater st., Dorchester, with Medical Examiner Timothy Leary.

"Someone came rushing in to us, crying 'Stop them! Stop them!" said Levine today in relating the incident of the auction.

"We ran out, and there was a red flag and there was an auctioneer with three men who said they were from the Taunton Savings Bank. Dr. Leary became very incensed when they refused to halt the auction, and he said: "Haven't you anything in human in you? Here's a man lying cold in death and you bloodsuckers come here at this time?"

Levine said that when the entreaties fell on deaf ears, James E. McDonald, chauffeur for Dr. Leary, thinking to confuse and perhaps halt the auction by becoming an unexpected bidder, stepped forward and raised the ridiculously low bid that had been made to $1000.

RUNNING UP BIDS

One of the bankers who was bidding became angry and bid $1500 for the three-family home. McDonald went up to $2000. The bank man raised to $3000, and then McDonald stepped out of the picture.

The auctioneer and his bankers finished the auction, the red flag was rolled up, the men stepped into their car and rode away.

And when Mrs. Louis Richards came home a short time later from a shopping trip she was the recipient of two surprises in the way of bad news—first, that her husband had taken his life in the house where he had invested $10,000, and next, that the house had been auctioned back to the bank while his body, yet warm, still remained inside.

Quincy Man Faces Eviction as Bank Spurns Home Loan Bonds

Boston Co-operative May Take Residence for Debt of $300

Back in August 1924, when everybody was working and things were looking bright for everybody, Ernest L. Dodd of 1 East Squantum st., Quincy, walked into the Boston Co-Operative Bank with his wife and negotiated with the bank for the purchase of his home in Quincy.

And when Ernest L. Dodd moved into this, his first home, he had great dreams for the future.

His dreams of 1934 have fallen all about him and now he is faced with the terse order of the officials of the Boston Co-Operative Bank to pay his debt or vacate.

A letter from the bank signed by Edmond F. Dagnino, in short told Dodd to be out of his home by 9:30 o'clock on the morning of Jan 25 unless he could raise $260.75 which Dagnino claims Dodd owes the bank, a debt which Dodd frankly admits but which he cannot pay at the immediate present.

Up until seven months ago, Mr Dodd revealed to the Boston American today, he was always prompt with his monthly payment of $25.25 which was the principal and interest due on an original mortgage of $4500.

WIFE ILL, LOSES JOB

His let the rent go in favor of sustenance for his wife. Not, but care in an asylum would ease his wife, physicians told him.

Ernest L. Dodd had a job then. He would catch up on the payments due the bank for his little home and everything would be fine. But things didn't go the way that Dodd had expected. His firm closed and Dodd was out of a job. It has been 18 months since Dodd has worked. He can't find a job. He has drawn on what he was able to save from his expenses, including all the doctors, to keep up his mortgage payments. Seven months ago he reached the end of his resources.

BANK SPURNS OFFER

And a few days ago the bank gave its final decision. They demanded that he pay them immediately $260.75 or vacate by January 25.

Dodd hopeful that the Home Owners Loan Corporation might save him went to the Quincy office. Officials there were glad to help him.

If the Boston Co-Operative Bank would accept the Federal Home Loan Bank bonds his home would be saved.

His hopes buoyed Dodd went to Treasurer Dagnino of the Boston Co-Operative Bank and told him the home loan story.

Dodd was given to understand that in his particular case, despite his investment of $3300 which he has already paid, the bank was not interested.

Now Dodd has but one recourse. That is the Quincy court, unless he can beg or borrow $300 to cover that $260.75 which the Boston Co-operative Bank is demanding.

PAY UP OR GET OUT

Ernest L. Dodd, of East Squantum st., Quincy, examining the papers that say "Pay up or get out." Unless he pays $260.23 due the Boston Co-operative Bank on a mortgage he is to be evicted.

WHERE AUCTION FLAG RULES

Discouraged Suitor Luck All Bad

Walter F. Darling, 29, Negro, of Camden st., South End, became so discouraged when his girl's guard an told him he could not marry her that he took one drink, stole an automobile, picked up a pal and drove to a dark lane in Milton where the police rudely disturbed him and his new girl.

That, in substance, was Walter's story in Quincy district court today, when he was held for the grand jury in bonds of $1500 for the alleged theft of the automobile and driving without a license.

Armored Auto Enigma Man Is Turned Loose by Police

Both the "mystery map," whose ownership of an expensive armored car excited the interest of the police and of Washington officials was free today. He is William Nidich, 38, of Franklin Gardens, Roxbury, and he has repulsed all efforts to learn the reason why he needed an armored car.

His attorney, Herbert Callahan, appeared at headquarters today and obtained his release after he had been held for 48 hours in second detention. The car was seized by police a week ago and was sent to Washington for inspection by secret service men.

The Senate committee investigating crime of which Senator Copeland is chairman yesterday examined the car, which is armed with steel and equipped with a rear seat compartment for three machine guns. It has bomb-breaker bars. Later agents of the Department of Justice admitted it would have to be returned to the garage from which it was taken in Boston.

Throughout his interrogation Nidich, who says he is an automobile salesman, has remained poised and cool, answering all questions with:

"I refuse to answer on advice of counsel."

It was intimated at headquarters he may have difficulty in obtaining 1934 license plates.

Search Brookline Houses for Boy

The police search for 11-year-old John Collins, who disappeared from his home at 215 Cypress st., Brookline, last Thursday, today extended to all empty houses and buildings in the neighborhood.

Officers engaged in the hunt for the lad discredited reports that he might have fallen through the ice on the Brookline reservoir.

HICKS MANSION, CENTURY OLD, IS LOST

Six Towns Send Apparatus to Aid Battle With Fire

One of Arlington's famous landmarks became a thing of the past when fire swept through and completely destroyed the old Hicks mansion, near Center, a 100-year-old house stocked with valuable pre-revolutionary furniture.

The house, located at 238 Pleasant st., and owned by Miss Ella H. Colman has, in recent years been used as a boarding house. Fifteen tenants of the place, in the house when the fire broke out, made their escape.

Arlington firemen responding to the call arrived to find almost the entire structure in flames and turned in a second alarm which brought fire-fighting apparatus from Belmont, Cambridge, Lexington, Medford and Somerville.

Among those made homeless by the blaze were Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Hubbard, Miss Grace Fettrech, Miss Elizabeth Newton, Frank Preston, Miss Bessie Johnson, Miss Mary Johnson, and several maids employed by Miss Colman.

The house was formerly owned by Samuel T. Hicks, and was replete with New England legends. Among these was a story to the effect that Hicks, frightened by his experience in a Cuban hurricane, had the house bolted into the ground, so it could not be carried away by wind.

While traffic was rerouted for more than an hour firemen fought to save pieces of the antique furniture. Intense heat, however, frustrated their efforts, and practically the entire furnishings were lost.

GUARDS PATROL SALEM COURT

A heavy guard surrounded the Salem courthouse today as officials went before the Essex grand jury to seek first degree murder indictments against two Boston taxi drivers, held in connection with the Lynn Paramount Theater slaying.

Police had orders to arrest anyone attempting to molest or approach the 14 government witnesses who were to describe the shooting of Fred Sumner, Lynn bill poster.

Asst. Dist. Atty. John E. Wilson said the jury will report its findings tomorrow.

The men against whom the indictments will be sought are Clement F. Murphy, 22, of Murphy st., and Louis Berrett, 23, of Commonwealth ave., Brighton. According to the authorities, alibis offered by the two men have been "shot full of holes."

TEACHERS TRY PAY CUT COUP

Pending the decision on Malden firemen's petition for a hearing before Fire Commr. Hannan, Malden school teachers today notified Mayor Devir that they would voluntarily contribute 10 per cent of their wages to the city treasury.

But the teachers reserve the right to void their contribution agreement if firemen win their salary appeal. The salary reduction, ordered by the fire commissioners when the petition failed to contribute voluntarily, automatically reduces the retirement pensions department members claim.

To forestall similar action by the school committee the teachers agreed to the temporary contributions.

But an attempt to reduce school salaries by council action is predicted by city officials.

Arthur Hopkins Will Produce New Barry Effort; Helen Gahagan Visits Rialto

By GEORGE HOLLAND

It is time for a scoop, by your leave. Philip Barry's first work since "Animal Kingdom" is coming to Boston, perhaps on the 22nd, under the able sponsorship of Arthur Hopkins, and Dorothy Gish will play the leading role. Author Barry won the Harvard Prize 12 years ago with his "You and I," and has written "White Wings," "Cock Robin," "John," "In a Garden," "Paris Bound," and "Holiday." Mr. Hopkins produced the last two named. The new Barry play will come to the Wilbur theater.

Arthur Hopkins

It is strange how one picks up odds and ends about what's doing in the theater. Strange also to find that Helen Gahagan, that charming actress who won't let greatest hit in "Tonight or Never," Belasco's farewell production, is in town without the official knowledge of any save you and me. Miss Gahagan is visiting with her handsome husband, that excellent actor, Melvyn Douglas, [illegible] protagonist of Ruth Weston, perhaps our most brilliant newcomer to the ranks of leading ladies, in "No More Ladies," I shall not write that "No More Ladies" is playing to packed houses at the Plymouth theater and be done with all the ado and return to Philip Barry's pen.

Miss Gahagan confided to me that the new Barry play is a story with a Boston background and that the Gish role is that of a nun who returns to her brothers and sisters and parents after a long convent stay. From another source I learned that the play was written for Maude Adams but Miss Adams thought the nuns habit was too severe for her loveliness.

There are other actors whose names I hear connected with the new Barry play. Cynthia Rogers, Ferrel Gish (sister), Kenneth MacKenna (Kay Francis' husband), Josephine Hull and Howard Lindsay are among them. I cannot understand Mr. Lindsay turning actor again, because he is co-author of New York's biggest comedy hit, "She Loves Me Not." But once an actor—

Which reminds me that Harry Wagstaff Gribble was once an actor and as he is in town, it seems seemly to mention that Miss Cynthia Rogers reached woman's estate in the theater through him, that Josephine Hull played in his "Maren Hare" to score her first hit, and that he believes Ruth Weston will electrify New York when she reaches the town in "No More Ladies." Miss Weston is the daughter of an old boss of mine. Her name is Ruth Schubert and her father owned the New York Evening Globe which merged with the Sun . . . Lee Shubert was in town all day yesterday. He saw "All the Kings Horses" at the matinee and "No More Ladies" in the evening.

Pianists Give Recitals

By MOSES SMITH

Three pianists played in Boston yesterday. All of them were enjoyable. Two of them were heard together at the Morning Musicale at the Statler—Harold Bauer and Ossip Gabrilowitsch each a famous pianist and great musician in his own right. The other, at Jordan Hall, was Leonard Shure, by comparison the veriest tyro, though at 23 he has already had a long career in the concert hall.

Mr. Shure, now living in Boston, proved that his recent success with the Boston Symphony Orchestra was no mere flash in the pan. He set himself a program which for austerity might have rivaled one from his teacher, Artur Schnabel. It contained three long and taxing works—Schubert's "Wanderer Fantasy," the Brahms set of Fantasy pieces, opus 116, and the Schumann F minor sonata, the performance of which the program mistakenly labeled the first in Boston.

The program was restrictive; all of the music was romantic, most of it passionate in utterance. Whatever virtue it had in unity it sacrificed in monotony. Within these limits Mr. Shure exhibited again a very great talent. Nothing has technical prowess his exuberance, and his profound musicality, the average listener could detect little to distinguish him from a famous colleague. This impression was even strengthened by Shure's faults—nothing his excessive driving of tone until the piano creaked under his exertions.

Despite this unharnessed power, Shure gave a notable and exciting performance. The large audience applauded and cheered him more heartily than at any debut recital I can recall in Jordan Hall.

Bauer and Gabrilowitsch played the exigente Mozart sonata in D major, Bach's Italian Concerto arranged by Bauer and several shorter pieces, including other Bauer arrangements. The program was musically engrossing as well as entertaining. It was beautifully played by two masters who surprised everyone by not getting in each other's way. The ensemble was as good as it might have been from two rotund egos, while the playing was the poetry of two Titans. The experience was rare.

'Bitter Sweet' on Screen

The Uptown, Friday, presents "Bitter Sweet," charming musical screen romance by Noel Coward. The film version presents Anna Neagle and Fernand Gravey as the lovers, Miles Mander as the villain, Ivy St. Helier as the comedienne, and Clifford Heatherley and Esme Percy in other important roles.

"I'll See You Again," "Dear Little Cafe," "The Call of Life," and the drinking song are featured.

On the same program the Uptown presents the Four Marx Brothers in "Duck Soup."

Talent Bright All the Way

To the Metropolitan tomorrow come Dorothy Wieck and Baby La Rov in "Miss Fane's Baby Is Stolen," for screen fare, and Cab Calloway and his Cotton Club Orchestra as the central attraction in an all Negro revue. Calloway and his band are known throughout the nation as screen, radio, stage and night club stars. His program at the Metropolitan will include several of the famous "Minnie the Moocher" type of song in addition to a number of the newer hotcha melodies.

Fabien Sevitzky will conduct the Grand Orchestra in a specialty arranged overture, featuring waltz compositions of the masters, aided on stage by the Hilda Ballet.

Loretta Young is Selected as Colman's Leading Lady in "Drummond" Film

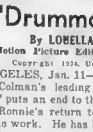
LOS ANGELES, Jan. 11—The selection of Loretta Young for Ronald Colman's leading lady in "Bull-Dog Drummond Strikes Back" puts an end to the continuous celebrations staged in honor of Ronnie's return to Hollywood. Mr. Colman, you see, returns to work. He has been the house guest of William Powell and these two have been having one grand time. Welcome-home after welcome-home party has been tendered Ronnie who makes no secret of his delight in getting back to dear old Hollywood.



Loretta Young, who was originally set for "The Affairs of Cellini" with Fredric March, steps into the even better role in "Bull - Dog Drummond Strikes Back" which Roy Del Ruth will direct and that very soon. Darryl Zanuck is eager to give the Colman fans their favorite

The battle between Sally Eilers and the Fox company looked mighty serious when Sally first returned from Europe. But like many big battles in the industry, it has all been settled amicably and Sally goes back to Fox Hills for her first 1934 picture, "Three On a Honeymoon," to be produced by John Stone. She must be happy that she missed some of the other pictures they had lined up for her for this cast contains Henrietta Crosman, Zasu Pitts and pretty Irene Bentley. The cold that kept Grace Moore in bed for a week or more has been given the sun treatment in Palm Springs. She returned yesterday to Columbia studios for her first picture, which is "Don't Fall in Love," by Charles Beahan and Dorothy Speare. It deals with a radio audition winner, who goes to Europe and gets her start in opera, and is not unlike Miss Moore's own romantic life story. Lou Silvers who was the first man to put music into the talkies ("The Jazz Singer") is musical director while Victor Schertzinger, composer of "Manchita," and no mean musician himself, directs Miss Moore.

Some of the skeptics in our village are "laffing" at Doug. Fairbanks, Jr.'s, ardent avowal of devotion to Gertrude Lawrence. Not alone because Miss Lawrence is said to have a daughter more suitable to young Doug in age, but it all seems to be a very, very good press stunt. Another—last Sunday the son and heir of Mr. Douglas Fairbanks, Sr., now of London, formerly of Beverly Hills, spent the day with his ex wife, Joan Crawford. By the way, Mr. Fairbanks, Jr., rejoins his father in London, almost immediately.

If the off-set scenes of Pat Patterson, English beauty brought here by Winfield Sheehan and Spencer Tracy, were put into one picture you would see the beginning of a romance. These two are in the same picture, but that doesn't necessitate leading together, linking together and acting each other every possible moment. Maybe Spence is just trying to make Loretta Young jealous, or maybe it's a lovers' quarrel, but all the Fox studio is agog over his attentions to Pat Patterson, who is as blonde as Loretta, and the same type

Lucky Use of the Takeout Double

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

The Takeout Double is perhaps usually one of the strongest and most effective calls at the disposal of the Contract player. It is an indication of small but strength and of the type of lesser, that is required for any response, partner whatever it is to pass back to and of course imposes on its the duty of the bidder of the part some constraint. With a very limited number of bids the bidder may make a bid indicating a great deal of power strength. He may even say that the Opponents have bid and bought a hand, but he cannot be based on notion, or on before making one of these calls he should be fairly sure that his partner will be able to bid something and thus keep the bidding open until he has found out what part of the

An effective and I believe one of the best Double is shown in the hand below which was played in the New York Regional Tournament conducted by the United States Bridge Association. The hand in all three matches in the city of the tournament.

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
1 ♣ (1)	Double (2)	1 ♠ (3)	2 ♣ (4)
4 ♠ (5)	Pass	Pass	Pass

(1) West West's hand contains 2 honor tricks, the big question is whether to risk an attempt to prevent vulnerable opponents from reaching game because of the great weakness of the trump suit.

(2) North is prepared for either a spade or heart response. If South bids hearts, then North knows that the partnership has at least seven tricks in that suit. If South bids spades, he expects to find four hearts in his partner's hand and thus willing to undertake a contract of two.

(3) Another effort to interfere with the possible rich of opponents to game.

(4) This is no doubt an overbid, but North reasoned that, with the Ace-King-Queen of hearts in his own hand South might find it difficult to bid again and, of course, probably pieced greater strength in the South hand than actually was there. Including, quite likely, five hearts.

The hand in play was extremely lucky. West opened the King of spades and followed with the Ace and South ruffed the third round. There was nothing for South to do now except play for an even break in hearts. Since the trumps broke the contract was made and laid down.

The Poet and the Editor!

I imagine Mr. Harold Ross, the editor of a weekly magazine in town which is not too obscure, is a disillusioned man—that is, if Harold Ross permits himself to be disillusioned. Some time ago he picked up a poet - a genius—right out of the gutter—or, to be exact, a garret which might just as well have been a gutter. He liked the fellow. He thought his genius ought to be encouraged. So he gave him some sort of executive job on the magazine at a weekly salary of $200. What I am confused about is the wording of the invitations and I would appreciate it very much if you could enlighten me regarding this matter. I might mention that there may also be a few out-of-town relatives included in the above number.

I intend to mail the invitations three or four weeks before the date of the wedding. As the dinner will be ordered by price I would like to be sure of just how many to order. How can this be done?

The Olympic Boxing Chairman Gives a Glory Shout

By AUSTEN LAKE

Edward C. Foster of Providence is president of the National Boxing Association, a nebulous organization which is mostly brains with very little body, says amateur boxers should be limited to three years of competition before kicking them into professional ranks by law. To which William J. Kenney of Boston, chairman of the Olympic boxing commission, has written a beautiful specimen of rhetoric and glory-yelling, the last paragraph of which goes:

"Such an idea is repugnant. Our sole interest in boxing is to provide the youth of America with opportunity to earn the rewards of clean living and enjoy the beatitudes that come from fair competition and good sportsmanship."

Now this would carry a greater glow of virtue if it were not for the fact that Boston amateurs have been exploited for years to the enrichment of promoters who have paid them off for slashing their faces, crumbling their ears and slugging each other, with shoddy jewelry and drug store watches that spill their works after a few windings, and have pocketed the profits. So it is hard to decide what Kenney means by beatitude, which sounds pretty ominous, because certainly he cannot mean the dank cellars, filled with fetid body odors and bad sanitation where the boys are obliged to dress and sometimes sleep during the Olympic tryouts and national A. A. U. tournaments.

The Sordid Apprentice Stage of Amateurism

And he cannot mean the tumbledown, cave-of-the-winds gymnasiums which have all the aspects of a sailors' boarding house, where the boys study the elements of their trade amid a gathering of locker room lawyers and frowsy swipes whose moral tone is not conducive to beatitudes nor gives off any aroma of clean living and sportsmanship. It is likely that Kenney does not know what he means and wishes only to make a musical meter with some phrases, like a politician when he mentions the inalienable rights of a free people and such lulling verse so dear to the the voters' hearts.

I almost wish that Kenney had not made these remarks, because it requires some pinching of the nostrils between thumb and forefinger when writing about the amateur boxing situation here, which has been practically suffocated by the grifters who swarm around the lads. For, when a little pinknot of a kid wishes to graduate himself from the urchin stage of street fighting into an ennobling sport which offers clean fun and rich rewards, he first buys himself a pair of cotton tights and a singlet and then mosses up to one of the bucket of blood gymnasiums.

There will be a couple of professional maulers, with thick features and hulking bodies, snorting and shuffling around the only ring amid the robust smells of rubbing liniment and stale breath, and watched by the usual hangers-on who talk in undertones without moving their lips and whose eyes are furtive and appraising. What the kid would like to see is a big, brotherly instructor in duck pants who might shape his crudities, teaching him to hit with the flat of his knuckles and how to untangle his feet, saying: "Keep the left up, now one-two, one-two."

Loafers Who Become Father Confessors

But there are only the unheeding pros, big men with puffy lips, and the leering loafers, and the kid lurks around shyly until one of the latter walks over and grunts through his sucking to bacco, "New, aintchu? Evuh fight any?" And that, like as not, is the beginning of a beautiful friendship in which the grifter, who has only hearsay knowledge of the fine boxing arts, becomes tutor, dietitian, spiritual advisor and business agent to the lad, hoping to cadge a smart dollar somewhere along the line. For there are scarcely any amateurs in Boston today who are not under the guidance of one of these touts.

Now, if the kid, through sheer heart and willingness, survives the poisonous instruction of the grifter and takes on a layer of crude polish so that he finally passes his novice test, he will soon have to meet the veteran fighters of the amateur ranks in open competition and lend his green body to the promoters of amateur tournaments. The luck of the draw may force him to meet one of these veterans, a hairy adult of many years experience, in his first fight and bring him such a hammering as to pulp his kid features and knock all ideas of clean fun and rich rewards out of his head forever. And any fan who has attended these tournaments has seen such youths wallowing under a storm of some old stager's blows, trying to remember what the book said about cases of the kind.

I question whether this could be called a beatitude or that it enhances the beauty of clean living, fair competition and good sportsmanship. Yet it is the thing that Foster wants to erase by putting a three-year limit on tournament eligibility. But the plan would blight our next Olympic team, which usually contains a set of copper-bottomed, leather-skinned old broilers who would not know a beatitude if it hit them on the chin So it is quite repugnant to the Olympic boxing chairman, Bill Kenney, who feels that American youth should be imbued with the spirt of self-sacrifice. Maybe that is a beatitude.

Cubs Oppose Eagles at Garden Tonight

By BILL GRIMES

After the thrilling overtime scoreless tie the Cubs played against Providence, the Canadian American League fans become all "het up" and one of the largest crowds of the season will trek to the Garden tonight to watch Coach Joe Gilmore's charges cross sticks with the Philadelphia Arrows.

The fans are just beginning to realize that all Can-Am clubs pack an abundance of action in all games. At times the players are somewhat ruthless and truculent, but the usual action is good hard, hockey—the brand that legitimately wins the fans.

The Cubs are in first place, with the Quebec Beavers right on their heels.

"NEW DEAL" CLICKS

Since the return of Manager Myles Lane and the acquisition of Bert McInenly, the Cubs have been traveling at a champ pace. After losing to the Eagles in New Haven a week ago, Lane and McInenly were assured to the Cubs, who then pulled themselves together and deadlocked the Arrows in Philadelphia, and tied the Rhode Island Reds at the Garden, in one of the most interesting contests of the season, despite the fact that it was scoreless.

The Arrows arrived here from Quebec last night and therefore are rested up for tonight's engagement. The Gardiner team made a better showing against the Beavers in Quebec than any other Can-Am club this season. They battled through two 1 to 1 overtime games with the Beavers, who have not lost a game at home this year and prior to Philadelphia visit, had won 15 out of a possible 16 points on their own ice Their only slip was a tie with New Haven.

WAITE, CARR BOW IN

Since he last visited the Garden, Manager Herb Gardner has added Frank "Deacon" Waite and Lorne Carr to his roster. Waite was one of the most popular players in the Can-Am League when he was playing for the old Tigers. He was adept at being in a class by himself as a pivot-man. Carr was acquired from the Rangers, who had purchased him from Buffalo of the International League but had not used him to any great extent.

JERWA ON DEFENSE

Manager Myles Lane and Joe Jerwa will be on the Cub defense, with Bert McInenly doing doubleduty work, while Frank Peiers and Ludger Desmarais will be on the points for the Arrows, with Eddie Jeremiah and Bob Hinsperger as their spares.

Garden Lineup

BAR LIQUOR AT WRIGLEY FIELD

Chicago, Jan. 11 (AP)—William Murphy Walker today forgot his fish and oyster business and centered his attention on his new assignment of bringing a world's baseball championship to Chicago.

Walker, one of the leaders in the Federal League baseball war 20 years ago, was elected president of the Chicago Cubs yesterday, succeeding the late William L. Veeck.

"We've been in two World Series since 1929 and were more or less duds," the genial, heavyset leader of the Cubs said. "We want another chance and are going after it. The 1934 National League race looks like it is going to be one of the closest in years, but I think the Cubs are going to win."

Part of Walker's plan to solve radio problem as affected baseball broadcasts, many of the games, read a 25-word statement at least five times between the hours of 10 a. m. and 5:30 p. m. advertising the game to be played that day at Wrigley field. The White Sox and other baseball clubs which permit broadcasts were expected to follow suit with similar demands for extra advertising over the radio before game time.

Beer, but no hard liquor, will be served at Wrigley Field next season, the board of directors decided at their meeting yesterday, when Philip K. Wrigley was elected chairman of the board.

Lincoln House Five Seeks Opponents

Sarazen, Jones to Supervise Building of Colgate Course

Hamilton, N. Y., Jan. 11 (INS)—Gene Sarazen at last is to have his ideal golf course. He will build it himself.

Gene told the Colgate University student body that he will lay out the Colgate course according to his own theories and make it his home course.

He and Bobby Jones will supervise construction of the 147-acre layout which the university recently purchased. Sarazen said the tract suits his purpose perfectly as it is roughly shaped along the lines of historic St. Andrews.

Gene said the course would be make any other, and proposes to make it "an easy one for the ordinary golfer and difficult for the professional."

NEWTON TRACK OUTLOOK POOR

By BILL CONNELL

Building from the ground up Donald Enoch these days as he marshals his track and field squad in the little dressing shed at Newton high.

Lacking a single veteran point winner, Enoch and Charley Longobardine, his assistant have a large job ahead. Newton has won many major meet titles under Enoch. It is not likely to snare such honors this season.

But the team has enough power to make a good dual meet group, so Newton boys will set their minds on spilling other individual teams. And forget state titles for a season.

"With more than 100 boys out there is an excellent chance to develop new stars," says Enoch. "The average age of the squad is low. It is difficult to say just how far this inexperienced group will go. A majority of the boys will be back another year and that is encouraging as far as future grown bids are concerned."

Allen Freeman, 600 yarder failed to earn an indoor letter last season, but developed rapidly on the cinders. He is one of three boys who have had some experience, and who are a foundation for this winter's team.

Tom Fitzgerald, 1000, is the second of the trio. Was green a year back, and may succeed this year. With the 1933 experience to help Louis Miller, sub on the last relay team in the third "vet". He'll run the 300, with Bob Quigley.

Jim Caton and Joseph Blair are a pair of high jumpers who are developing nicely. Both can get up over 5-7 now and will do better before the season's end.

Jesse Hale in the broad jump; Vic Haven and Melvin Sakaz in the shot; Sanderson Sloan and Russell Liscomb in the hurdles; Bob Quigley, Sargent Moore and Charley Mascia in the dash, round out the list of probable scorers with this Newton squad.

School Slants

The Belmont High football squad of some 60 players will be feted tonight at Payson Hall, Belmont, in the annual reception given by the Exchange Club of the town.

Speakers at the Belmont affair include Bill Ortaldo, of Boston College coaching staff; Al McCoy, Northeastern; D. Leo Daley, Boston; Bill Ohrenberger, Boston English; Fred Ostergren, Arlington, and Tom McCabe of Holy Cross. Sports Director Lewis Harris and Head Grid Coach Tom Newell of the high school also will attend.

Medford High basketball prospects can jump a lot on January, when Jim Haslam may become eligible. One of the least powerful positions of the Medford five right guard, would be strengthened with Haslam in the position.

American Horses Finish One, Two

Lingfield, Eng., Jan. 11 (AP)—American-owned grand national candidates today ran one-two in the southern handicap steeplechase over a three-mile course. F. Ambrose Clark's Sorley Boy winning, with J. H. (Jock) Whitney's Lone Eagle II in second place. Only two others ran for the £150 purse.

Schmeling, Hames Negotiations Off

Philadelphia, Jan. 11 (INS)—Negotiations for a bout between Max Schmeling and Stan Hames were broken off today, following the failure of rival managers to agree on their split of the purse.

MEL ALMADA HEADED FOR REGULAR BERTH WITH RED SOX

COLLINS SENDS $10,000 TO SEATTLE

By JOE CASHMAN

Our grandstand managers lifted their brows, gazed critically and chanted the old refrain, "two or three years away," when Melo Almada appeared on the Fenway scene last Summer.

In other words, they doubted that the young outfielder, who was known to be up on trial, would be purchased outright in a hurry.

Now comes word that General Manager Eddie Collins has exercised his option on the rookie by forwarding $10,000 to the Seattle club.

So Almada has the laugh on his critics for the time being. Moreover, don't be surprised if he continues to confound them by installing his way past the formidable opposition at the Fen to a regular fly-chasing berth before he is old enough to vote.

YOUNGEST IN MAJORS

If Henry Edwards is correct, and we've yet to find the American League publicity expert in error, Mel is the youngest major leaguer in the business today. The records show that he was born on Feb. 7, 1913, which means he will not celebrate his 19th birthday until next month.

A boy of his age who makes his bow in fast company at midseason and finishes up bashing the apple at a .34- clip and flashing amazing speed and defensive ability, as he did last Summer, bears plenty of watching.

For while the odds are generally very heavy against such extreme youth in big league circles, when an infant breaks in at Mel's gait he is often writing the opening chapter of a glorious diamond history.

Nine out of every ten of the game's greats were establi-hed in the main tent when they became of age. Your average performer is between 25 and 27 when he makes the grade, but the guy in the hall of fame has the class from the time he starts to shave.

Jimmy Foxx was an Athletics star at 18. Mel Ott joined the Giants at 17 and stuck. Herb Pennock walked in for a 22-year stay at 18. Freddie Lindstrom was no older than Almada when he ousted Heinie Groh off third in New York. Rogers Hornsby was a Cardinal fixture at the same age. Chick Hafey, Frankie Frisch, Lou Gehrig, Rabbit Maranville, Joe Cronin, Babe Ruth and Pie Traynor, were all gaining headlines at 20.

Among the old-time immortals you'll find that Matty and Marquard were mainstays at 19, while Speaker, Lajoie, Chance and Schalk were all famed at 20.

KIDS MAKE GOOD

Few of these heroes, past or present, required more than a season or two to make the jump from the sandlots to the heights. Once started, they couldn't be stopped. And the higher they climbed the better their work.

So far in his brief career, Almada has shown all these signs of genius.

He stepped out of high school into Class AA at Seattle soon after his 17th birthday and immediately took a berth away from his older brother, who had had no major league experience. In a season and a half he was up with the Sox.

He was batting .328 when he left Seattle and boosted his mark to .341 against big league pitching.

Unless he has been playing it away over his head for two years which would be the longest flash in the pan history, the lad should see precious little more of Mel, if indeed they ever see him again.

Crossley Third in Milwaukee Race

Milwaukee, Wis., Jan. 11 (AP)—Traveling at 24?.9 miles an hour, the team of Freddie Ottevaire of Detroit and Stveers Van Slambrock of Belgium won the third six-day bicycle race today. The victory was on mileage, four other of the five teams that remained at the finish having amassed more points by sprints.

The final standings showed Eugie McNamara of Newark, N. J. and his partner, Bobby Thomas of Kenosha, Wis., second, with third place going to Al Crossley of Boston and Kreddie Zack of Switzerland. The standings:

	Miles	Laps	Points
Ottevaire Van Slambrouck	2433	6	7?5
McNamara-Thomas	2425	6	575
Crossley-Zack	2425	6	115
Van Kempen-Andy	2425	5	1?5
Pedersen-Laurent	2425	5	105
Cohen-Berkman	2425	1	500

'I'll Throw This to the Sled Dogs'

GEORGE TELLS MAT PLANS TO BYRD

By JACK CONWAY

Ed Don George will tell Admiral Dick Byrd and the members of his party how he expects to defend his title as world's heavyweight wrestling champion against "Jumping Joe" Savoldi at the Boston Garden tomorrow night.

Inasmuch as the broadcast to the South Pole regions over a special short wave radio hook-up which has been arranged by the Sled Dog Club, which will receive a part of the receipts of tomorrow night's show

BYRD IS MAT FAN

Admiral Byrd has been closely associated with the numerous activities of the Sled Dog Club. Officials of the club will also go on the air tonight.

George has made numerous appearances before the "mike." In addition to being a wrestling champion, he is also a graduate of the University of Michigan. He is certain to conduct himself with credit to the wrestling game and himself.

One of the reasons for the popularity of wrestling is the type of young men who have forged to the front in the mat game. George Strecker, DeGlane, Savoldi, McCready and other wrestling stars make splendid impressions when they make appearances outside the ring.

DON IS CHOICE

George continues to rule a favorite to defeat Savoldi. Ed won from "Jumping" Joe in their last bout, and his backers are confident he will repeat his triumph tomorrow night.

Savoldi scored the first fall in his last meeting with the champion. His famous drop kick tipped George over. Savoldi is faster than George, and he believes that this asset will enable him to gain the victory.

Betting does and their drives will be on exhibition in the lobby of the Garden. Leonard Sappals, most famous of the racing drivers who rushed serum to Nome in a critical emergency, will be among the drivers on hand.

"Panther" Joe Malcewicz, who has been hounding Jim Londos for two years, will keep in training by battling "Man Mountain" Dean who weighs 300 pounds. The "Panther," who only weighs 190 pounds, says that weight above 190 pounds does not help a wrestler. He says it only slows him down. He will try to prove his contention at the expense of the "Man Mountain."

Dempsey's Back in Town —and Still Goes for the Barber Shop—

Only One Who Thought He'd Beat J. L. Johnson Was Manicurist

By Jack Kofoed

Jack and Hannah are back in New York, the Dempseys, I mean . . . and that makes the town a gayer and pleasanter spot.

It has been 16 years since Jack Dempsey first appeared on Broadway . . . a shabby boy who was awed by the clangor and arrogance of the metropolis. He made, straight as a homing pigeon, for John Reisler, who owned a glittering tonsorial parlor, and was hauled up and down Mazda Lane as "John the Barber."

John said, in effect, "Who did you ever lick?" and when Dempsey told him Kid Hancock and Anamas Campbell and Joe Bonds, the Barber just laughed because he had never heard of those fellows. But he was good hearted and staked the kid from Salt Lake City to free service and a meal now and then.

Let's look into the shop and listen to the manicurist talking to the head barber:

Barber—There's that Dempsey guy, Mable. I'll give to 7-to-5 he wants his nails pared again. It's the fifth time this week, and I was sayin' to the old lady only yesterday. It's a wonder his fingers ain't filed into the quick. Some night the polish on his nails'll shine in his eyes and blind him and he'll wake up in the dressin' room.

Manicurist—I think you're just terrible, Mr. Frank. Mr. Dempsey's a nice boy, and he must be a good fighter because he told me he licked a fellow named Johnny Sudenberg in 20 rounds.

Barber—He would take that long to beat a guy named Sudenberg. May be he can beat railroad shacks and hoboes, when it comes to real fightin' . . . aah!

Manicurist—Listen, Mr. Frank, I got eight bobs in my pocketbook, and I'll bet you four big, round, fat dollars that Dempsey will beat that John Lester Johnson he's goin' to fight tonight.

Barber—O. K., sweetie, but when you come in tomorrow morning have those four bucks ready. Besides all them manicures he's getting for nothing this Dempsey has got a terrible voice . . . and I wouldn't bet on a tenor against a mug who sings bass like this John Lester Johnson.

Dempsey was desperately hard up at the time of his match with the big colored man. When I say that I don't mean he just had to give up riding in taxi cabs, and take a three dollar a day room somewhere. He didn't have enough money to buy himself a meal. The $38 50 he had been promised represented just so many juicy porterhouse steaks.

Johnson was an experienced veteran; Dempsey a raw boy, who was an instinctive if untutored fighter. John broke two of Jack's ribs. The pain weakened him, but he continued to carry on the war with unabated fury. He lost, sure enough, but proved himself a great prospect.

However, Dempsey was terribly disappointed. It didn't matter that the cards had been stacked against him. He had failed, so he beat his way back West, where he met Jack Kearns, and began the upward journey that was to make him heavyweight champion and a millionaire.

If John the Barber had been as impressed by the dark-skinned fighter as Mable, his manicurist, was, he might have shared in the vast fortune piled up by Dempsey's fists.

Let's look into the shop again the morning after the fight.

Barber—Well, baby, tell me all about it.

Manicurist—Don't kid me any more about Jack Dempsey, Mr. Frank. If he don't know how to fight, then I can't talk a hardware salesman from the Bronx into getting his nails trimmed.

Barber—But he got licked, didn't he? Too bad for your four bucks, Mable. Why didn't you tell the big tramp you had money on him? He might have fought harder.

Manicurist—Harder my eye! He gave everything he had. Along about the fourth round I nearly died of heart failure. Dempsey missed a punch, and Johnson let one go to the body. Why, if you were up in the gallery you could of heard it land. Jack's face was as white as paper, I'm not foolin'. But he didn't back up. He just kept punchin' . . . punchin' . . . like he was nuts . . . and everybody stood up and howled. It was swell. And when he came back to his corner kind o' gaspin' . . . and the seconds were sloppin' him with water, he turned around and winked at me and said "I'll be in for another manicure tomorrow, beautiful." A fighter . . . I'll say he's a fighter!

But what a change there is in him now. He's bigger and heavier and older . . . away well dressed and with money in his pocket. He has a cabin at the St. Moritz, instead of a cheap room on Eighth, and when he comes to town. He is married to the beautiful and utterly delightful Hannah Williams. Civilization has coated him with a veneer . . . but underneath is the same tiger from the jungle.

Jack Dempsey, in spirit, will always be as great a fighter as he was the night Mable the manicurist bet four dollars on him.

WILD LIFE IN FILMS SHOWN SPORTSMEN

By WALTER RILEY

Not the least interesting of a highly entertaining program lined up for the Saturday all day session of the New England game conference to be held under the auspices of the Massachusetts Fish and Game Association at Hotel Statler, is a series of moving pictures redis showing wild life in its various habitats.

Frederick "Pete" Blodgett, well-known Boston banker and sportsman, will show his famous beaver and moose pictures taken at Willard Wilson's camps in New Brunswick as well as a series of photo-shooting shots made in New York State's hunting terrain.

Blodgett became famous a few years ago when he and Lawrence Lombard, Boston attorney flew a Moth plane from East Boston report to the Admiralty Islands off the coast of Alaska.

The "Flying Fools," as they later became known, snapped remarkable pictures of the Kardiack bear, largest known carnivorous animal in the world, some of them standing as high as 12 feet. They displayed these pictures all over New England.

MOOSE IN HERDS

But Blodgett for some unknown reason was able to get within touching distance of a herd of them during a recent salmon fishing vacation to Mackmani in the Miramichi River district of New Brunswick.

He took movies of 17 cow moose on the first night of his trip and a dozen bull moose on the second day. His reels are complete with interesting shots of the northern animal which have proved educational that the New Brunswick government was influenced to buy them.

Robert G. Stone is to show his "Pictures of African Game" as taken on recent trips. Those who have been privileged to view them in private showings declare them to compare favorably with those of noted big game photographers with the exception they are devoid of the slaughter angle.

Charles Clapp of Dedham, owner of the 32-foot motor sailing boat, Wasis, will flash on the screen his collection of sword-fishing off the New England coast.

This exhibition will be a composite of Flying Fools years of picture taking, showing the start off from Woods Hole, across Vineyard Sound to Nobska Light and Block Island and as far out as 40 miles from land depending on weather conditions.

MOUNTAIN HUNTING

They show Clapp in the striker's position, wielding the deadly jagged pointed harpoon and the excitement when the "lily iron" hooks into the fish and the thrill of bringing him in tires.

James Hooper, Jr., companion of Clapp on his sword fishing sea jaunts, will give the descriptive talk to go with the pictures and will express his opinion on whether or not the 40 pounds sea beast will actually attack a dory or boat.

"Mountain sheep hunting" in Alaska will hold the center of attention when Matthew Lahti, Wellesley Farms well known hunter, combines the thrills of another Alaskan expeditions after this rugged species of mountain wild life.

Tilden Plays Best Net Game of Life to Win

By JOHN R. TUNIS

Madison Square Garden, New York, Jan. 11 Before a crowd that completely filled this huge place, a crowd that would have been sizable for a prize fight or a Stanley cup match, William T. Tilden defeated his young rival, Ellsworth Vines, in one of the finest matches of professional tennis ever seen, in three straight sets, 8-6, 6-3, 8-6.

The two men were even at five and six all when Tilden, playing superbly, went ahead and finally broke Vines to take the set eight-six, aided by a double fault and error on the backhand of the California ace. To this point the match had been remarkable tennis and Vines showed he was in the fight from the start.

The first set was hot as they went but the second set and it must be termed like mid-July down to the last point. Both men were using the same tactics, attacking whenever a backhand at ever opportunity and despite a terrific drive the younger man held his own in the rallies.

Vines went to two all but in the next game Tilden a four-two lead picking up Vines' fastest drives to the corners. Bill was 5-2. The Californian saved a couple of set points by beautiful services in the next game and two more on Tilden's delivery in ruins but Bill finally secured home his drives, and Vines' errors, took the set at six-three after an hour and forty-seven minutes of actual play.

Baer Willing to Bet Tunney He Can Whip Carnera

By MAX BAER

Written for Universal Service.
Heavyweight Contender.

Washington, Jan. 11—I see Gene Tunney picks Carnera to beat me when, and if, we meet for the heavyweight championship of the world beginning of next night life.

Well, I would like to tell Mr. Tunney he needn't go looking for oil wells as an investment for his money. If he thinks Primo is a cinch to whip me for the title, let him invest some of the Italian against me, oil wells being what they are and Carnera being what he is in Gene's estimation right now.

I'll admit my night life has been pretty fast of late, especially in New York, but now that I'm on the road, it's a different story.

There is just one more thing I'd like to get over to the public. When the time comes for me to attempt to lift the crown, you can bet your sweet life I'll be in the best of shape.

After this theatrical tour is completed, I'm bound for a ranch in California belonging to my manager, Ancil Hoffman. I'll be there for three months and I now extend an invitation to Mr. Tunney to come up and see me some time.

Hedlund Drives for Casey Meet

Hedlund will have only a few days to get his men ready as exams are due at Tech, and that will mean burning the midnight oil rather than the boards. Capt. Dick Bell will probably be in shape for the sprint events at the indoor games. Bell is the Intercollegiate 70 yard title holder and will be competing for the first time since injuries handicapped his work last spring.

TOSI OFFERED PROFESSIONAL GRID CONTRACTS BY 3 CLUBS

REDSKINS HAVE INSIDE TRACK FOR B. C. ACE

Flavio Tosi, one of the greatest ends in Boston College history, an all-Eastern wing choice has been offered professional football contracts by three outstanding big league teams the Brooklyn Dodgers, New York Giants and Boston Redskins, according to an admission made today.

While the Beverly youth had his heart set on entering the teacher-coach profession and would like to get started on his career as soon as possible after his graduation in June, it is likely that he will take a fling at the pro game for at least a year and, according to his present inclination, will be wearing a Redskins' uniform

REDSKINS FIRST CHOICE

Naturally he will make no commitments until his college days are over, as he is anxious to retain his amateur standing through the indoor and outdoor track season.

George Marshall, president of the Boston Redskins, tendered the most attractive contract of the three pro teams, one which is sufficiently interesting to swing Tosi into line.

The Dodgers were the first to seek Tosi's signature, Capt. John McEwan, former Holy Cross coach, against whose teams Tosi played for two years previous to 1933, was impressed with the Boston College end's remarkable play against Fordham at the Polo Grounds last fall.

DRAWING CARD

Jack McBride, Syracuse coach and member of the New York Giants team also witnessed that game and made an even better offer and followed up by sending scouts to the Villanova, Western Maryland and Holy Cross games at University Heights.

His report on Tosi was most favorable, with the result that several attempt have been made to secure Tosi's promise to sign a New York contract.

With the larger contract as offered by the Redskins and the opportunity of playing before a home crowd Tosi is inclined to the belief that he will accept the local offer as soon as his college days are completed

It's All in Knowing How to Fall, Says Jockey Molonay, and Proves It

A crowd of 50,000 racegoers at Newbury, England, watched in terror as this took place at the first jump of the famous Berkshire hurdle race there, but the iron nerve of Jockey J. Molonay saved him from injury. Molonay's mount, "Delaglace," No. 1, was bumped as the field took the jump three abreast. You see the horse falling here and Molonay grimly freeing himself from the stirrups as he pitches over its head. It it a remarkable closeup of a man playing tag with death.—(International News Photos.)

VIOLET ACE TO RUN HERE

Harry Hoffman of New York University will have a second opportunity to show his superiority when he stacks up against Arnold Adams, former Bates star, in the Prout Memorial 600 yard feature, at the K. of C. track games at Boston Garden on the night of Jan. 27.

Hoffman led Adams by a scant yard at the Brooklyn, K. C. games last Saturday night. However, the distance was only 500 yards with Bates coming so fast at the finish that most of the onlookers felt certain that the Bates flier would have been the victor at the longer distance.

Baseball 'Justice' Can Be Carried Too Far

By BILL CORUM

New York, Jan. 11—Included among my acquaintances are perhaps a dozen men and one woman who have, as Broadway would say, done a bit. For the most part these past indiscretions sometimes youthful, and ranging from putting the snatch on a few carelessly parked motors to putting the slug on one bloke who had walked up a dark alley to wait for a street car, have been forgotten.

"Justice," in the words of the tail-coated, white-gloved German executioner who touched the button on that lad from Holland in Leipsig yesterday, "has been done". The law has exacted its penalty. The criminal has paid for his mistake. The years have wiped the slate clean. Which is as it should be, of course.

But that is for crimes committed against the common law—the law that applies to you and me and all of us. To break the peculiar and special laws of the highly organized sport of professional baseball is different. Baseball is the elephant of sports. It never forgets and it never forgives.

TWO INSTANCES

Two recent happenings have served to bring this home to me. One was "Shoeless Joe" Jackson's application to Baseball Commissioner Landis for reinstatement. The other was my meeting with Hal Chase in Tucson.

It may surprise you to know that Chase, generally rated the greatest first baseman of all time, cannot even pay his way into those Class D league parks in Arizona, New Mexico and the southwest.

Some times, however, they say he slips into the bleachers among the Mexicans and Indians and sits with his hat pulled far down over his eyes. But not to shade them from the sun.

Now to my way of thinking that is utterly ridiculous. There is a limit to the punishment that the criminal law provides. There should, in common justice there must, be a limit to the punishment under baseball law. I don't know so much about the cases of Jackson, Cicotte, Weaver, Risberg the luckless Jimmy O'Connell and others who have been officially invited outside the outfield fences.

But it seems to me Chase would have been better off if they had got him tossed into jail for a few years, let him out, and then forgotten all about it.

"Pauper Prince Hal" appears to be in a position where he will have to die to escape the stigma one misstep in the baseball pastime has hung on him. That's wrong. It must be wrong. Guilty as he readily admits he was, Chase surely has paid his debt to baseball in the dozen years he has been kicked from pillar to post in one of those desert towns after another.

BITTER ABOUT SCANDAL

How much credence can be put in his stories I don't know. But he certainly tells some amazing tales, especially about "the symphathetic pennant race" that enabled the Reds to win the National League flag in 1919. He is bitter about that, for it was the closest he ever came to being on a pennant winner, and he still is ball player enough at heart to regret that he never got into a World's Series.

Of course it is a plainly difficult problem for the baseball people to handle because they are by no means entirely responsible for Chase's present plight. He has had other opportunities in other fields.

Still, it seems to me that organized baseball, for its own sake, should issue some sort of order officially lifting the ban on these fellows. Without exception their major league playing days are behind them. If some club owner major or minor should want to employ one of them as a scout or as coach, I don't think there would be any great objection from the fans.

Even the out and out criminal is given at least a second chance. There is no good reason why the baseball law shouldn't be equally lenient.

EAGLE ICEMEN BOW TONIGHT

The Boston College hockey team playing for the first time since 1929 as a recognized sport will open its season with the Boston Pool Club tonight at the Arena as part of a double-header with Northeastern and Colby sharing the other half of the attraction.

The Boat Clubbers are led by Paul Curtis, former Yale captain and left wing. Curtis has the services of Tim Clark, Bert Bigelow and Sam Batchelder as defensemen. All three played for Harvard at one time. Among the other players are Art Lancaster of Princeton fame, Ding Palmer of Yale, Elliot, Putnam and John Cross of Harvard.

Passing the Puck

By BILL GRIMES

Coach Joe Gilmore has his Bruins Cubs primed both mentally and physically for the battle tonight with the Philadelphia Arrows at the Garden. Every member of the Cub squad is in fine condition and realizes that he has a real assignment on his hands in Herb Gardiner's Arrows.

Any club that has the punch to hold the Beavers to two ties on Quebec ice, as the Arrows did, is fully deserving of serious consideration

Frank "Deacon" Waite, who more than any one player gave the fans a 100 per cent return on their money during the days when he played for the Tigers under Eddie Powers, is with the Arrows "Deacon" is the same old pile maker and since he joined them the Arrows have started to climb back for a Can-Am play off position

Big Nels Stewart is now leading the American Division scorers with ten goals and six assists. In his entire hockey career, Stewart has never put as much effort into his playing as he has since he joined the Bruins. Moreover, he has a fine influence over his mates and there is no player in the league who stands up better under continuous kidding or is the victim of as many practical jokes as Stewart. He has a truly remarkable sense of humor for a hockey star.

Before leaving for the West with the Bruins, Don Smillie former Toronto Varsity star worked out with the Cubs. Smillie played wing and then shifted into center ice where he gave a fine exhibition due to his ability to break any body

Smillie will probably be assigned to line duty as soon as Eddie Shore returns. Revamping amateur defense men into big league linemen before they have acclimated themselves to fast company is risky business.

Tommy Filmore, the Cubs' right winger, who is a professional golfer during the off season and a member of the P. G. A., may be affiliated with a country club in this section. A number of clubs are angling for Filmore's services, for he is not only an unusually fine golfer but a very capable instructor

In the old days much of the referees' troubles developed from the practice of non-workin' officials second guessing those on the ice. As a ticket was required for admission to the Garden, the second guessers were not in evidence for many years, but they are beginning to crop up again and the "boys" are getting a nice panning whenever they miss one or call one which does not agree with the smart alecks.

Walter "Doc" Gautreau is now in shape and ready to answer Pres Dooley's call to referee the Can-Am League. Gautreau has experienced officiating and will be assigned to referee, instead of skating in as a linesman.

Mickie Roach has developed into a hard-boiled manager since he took over the Syracuse berth. He takes defeats to heart and jumps up on the old soap box at the slightest provocation.

SPEAKING OF news.

The Boston Garden [illegible] show next Spring. At a cost of $1[illegible]

Mr. Boston

HENRI DeGLANE, former world's heavyweight wrestling champion, and Dan Koloff will quit gay Paree next month, and return to America. And are quite happy over the fact they will be able to have imported French wines at their meals.

RAY CASS, who staged the Johnny Wilson-Gi[illegible] middleweight bout at the Arena some years ago is once more talking boxing. He [illegible] New England has plenty of [illegible] talent, and will [illegible] about a little [illegible] one time manager Frankie Young) Britt of New Bedford, who made a fortune for himself and for his manager.

BARNEY FOX called us on the telephone to ask why Dick Madden was not included in the list of Irish fighters. Barney says Madden is 100 per cent Irish. Okay, Barney Now let him prove it in the ring.

ED DON GEORGE has informed Paul Bowser he would like to defend his world's brass-weight wrestling crown against Jim Browning in Boston. The latter prefers New York. I don't blame him, in view of the fact his recent bout with George in the New York Garden was ordered into an extra 15 minute period when the latter was out front at the end of the regular time limit.

JIMMY BRONSON who [illegible] he one of Gene Tunney's "High Eyes," is once more showing [illegible] boxers at the New York Gardens. He has a [illegible] feud with Jimmy Johnson [illegible] goes for Harry Lenny who used to say he would never permit one of his boxers to show in the Garden while Johnston was matchmaker. That was before he was offered $ grand for Ray Impellettiere to meet Walter Neusel. Money talks

THE SPECULATIVE [illegible] is betting $ [illegible] that Bill Tuan [illegible] chucks down [illegible] Ellsworth Vines at the Garden on [illegible] Monday night Tilden still has [illegible] on his [illegible] 40-love [illegible]

JUDGE FAHEY has would like to get hold of a new bank roll so that he can purchase some of the players he feels would give the Braves a pennant punch. The Judge has had difficulty in hooking up with youthful Tom Yawkey who inherits a couple of million every month or so.

HOCKEY, LIKE other sports, needs new stars. The fans get tired of watching the same players in action year after year. With the return of normal times and the securing of new talent, hockey will find its way out of the snow drifts.

THE BRUINS require the services of Shore much like the Yankees do those of Ruth. Each has color and a fiery attack. Or you may [illegible] box office appeal.

IT WILL BE [illegible] Joe Patsy Pirroni will be able to make his start as a heavyweight boxer. He has been ill.

CLOSING FIRM, WITH UTILITY SHARES UP

New York, Jan. 11—A strong undertone displayed by the utilities helped to smooth over some rough spots in other sections of today's Wall Street stock market.

Some of the alcohols also moved up substantially, and most of the rails gave a good account of themselves. The close was steady to firm.

Aside from bullish and bearish implications of activities at Washington, together with the possibility that Congress may revalue the dollar and permit the Treasury to take over the Federal Reserve's gold holdings, Wall Street apparently was paying more attention than usual to business and industrial news.

Brokerage circles seemed impressed by trade reports from various parts of the country which indicated that the first quarter of this year will show a pronounced gain over the same period of 1933. Comparisons, however, will be aided by the fact that all lines of business picked upward during the early months of last year.

First hour changes were narrow. A firm undertone at the start of the session was quickly converted into irregularity. U. S. Steel and American Telephone were down fractionally.

Armour of Illinois preferred advanced 2 points and American Woolen preferred was a point higher. Atchison, Consolidated Gas, Nash and Libby Owens were slightly higher.

Corporate issues continued their forward movement in the bond division. The government, although still lacking the sort of support to foster a substantial recovery, showed a somewhat steadier tone.

Sales at noon approximated 780,-000 shares.

In the third hour losses and gains were about evenly divided. Utilities and tobacco shares were easy. Reynolds Tobacco B was down over a point and American Tobacco B was down about a point. Atchison and Penn Marquette were a point or more higher.

Issues showing losses of a point or so included Case Threshing, Chrysler, Johnston Textron and E. Simmelig. U. S. Steel was steady around its last closing level, Brooklyn Union Gas sagged 2 points.

Sales to 1 p. m. approximated 1,010,000 shares.

Fourth hour prices saw a good assortment of gains and losses. Alcohol shares were inclined to move forward. U. S. Industrial Alcohol was up around a point higher. Rails were firm, with Atchison showing a gain of a point.

American Telephone and Chrysler were down a point or more, while Nash Motors chalked up a gain of better than a point. International Shoe was strong, advancing 2 points.

Boston Wool Mart Trading Is Limited

Mill Operations Found Increasing

Dun & Bradstreet's weekly review of industry in the New England area today says the period of curtailment during the early part of the production of textiles in line with sales, and operations are increasing, although the producers of rayons and fine cottons have shut down for a week. Manufacturers and wholesalers of woolens have only moderate stocks on hand, and woolen piece goods prices are firm. The sale of clothing at retail has been good, leaving manufacturers in a position to make deliveries of their spring lines.

Bodu Is Formed to Help the Utilities

Chicago, Jan. 11—Plans to organize a nationwide association of public utility security owners for the purpose of opposing the forces that are depressing the fair value of utility securities were announced here today by Chester D. Tripp, president of the American Federation of Utility Investors, Inc., a non-profit corporation recently formed for this purpose.

Construction Award Total Is $27,412,000

Mystery Prowler in Library Seeking Love Notes From Lawyer to 'Sunny'

"What was it that you took from Mrs. Paige's desk?" Inspector Anderson asked of Mrs. Phelps. His face was emotionless and I could gain no idea of what impression this strange story had made upon him.

"Mr. Cleveland's love letters," she replied, "I was afraid, since they were there in that inner drawer, that the police would find them and believe that there had been some intrigue between them. Mr. Cleveland asked me to get them, if possible, and we both thought that I could do it better than he."

"So you brought a confederate here with you in your car ——" began Anderson, but Mrs. Phelps interrupted him with a fleeting smile.

"No," she said. "But I did tell Mrs. Deane that I would send some letters out of that desk—letters that would get Miss Sunny into troublesome. I asked her to come around to the garden window and throw a stone through the glass.

"We saw her before she had time to do it, and then you all piled out of the room after her. Of course, she just stepped back inside the kitchen door and locked it after her."

"I see," said Anderson meditatively. "Very cleverly done. Where are these letters now?"

"I don't know," answered Mrs. Phelps. "That was why I unfastened the desk with a hairpin just as you guessed. But the inner drawer was unlocked and empty. That was why Mr. Cleveland came to talk to you this morning. We were anxious to know if the police had found them."

"That's all true," put in the lawyer.

Anderson's face wore a queer expression, just as if some strange and new idea were beginning to dawn in his mind. But his eyes were far away and very steely.

"Then he supposes that Mrs. Paige herself destroyed them after her interview with you?"

CLUES ALL MIXED

There was silence.

"Did Mrs. Paige mention to either of you the receipt of a letter in the morning mail which had disturbed her very much?"

"No," denied Cleveland and Mrs. Phelps in chorus.

"Did she mention a phone call which had upset her?"

"No."

"There are a couple of questions," continued Anderson, "left in my desire to believe your story and I admire your frankness even at this late date. However, there seem to be several points which you have conveniently forgotten to touch upon. First, I want to know what took you to the basement of this house and why you remained there long enough to smoke nineteen cigarettes between you?"

Cleveland and Mrs. Phelps bent forward curiously.

"Why, we came into the hall and into this room and that is all," said the lawyer. "That was all, wasn't it?" he appealed to his companion.

"It was indeed," answered Mrs. Phelps positively. "Are you certain, Inspector, that you picked these up in the cellar? These are the brand I always smoke and I see on them some of my lipstick—or lip-stick that is exactly like mine. If you had picked them anywhere else I wouldn't hesitate to claim them. I guess I've smoked hundreds of them over here. Maybe the maid just emptied them into the cellar."

"No," explained Anderson, "Mrs. Deane says that they were not on the basement floor the morning before the murder and we found them the next morning. Someone smoked these in the cellar while awaiting an opportunity to murder Mrs. Paige."

But both Cleveland and Mrs. Phelps shook their heads in denial. They had no explanation to offer.

"This is the truth as God is my witness," protested the lawyer warmly. "I have made a clean breast of everything I know."

"Very will, sir," replied Anderson, "What you say may be true in part or altogether. I don't know yet. Now let me ask you—when you left Mrs. Paige was she very much agitated?"

"Decidedly so. I cursed myself for being a fool to upset her like that."

"Did you tell her that her husband had been unfaithful to her?"

"I think that she knew that already," answered Cleveland unwillingly. "Everybody else did. It could not have been news to her."

"Then her reaction was very queer," commented the Inspector. "Most women would have raised the devil. Walked out or sued him for divorce."

"You didn't know Sunny," answered Cleveland sadly. "She was here in a strange country without money and her pride was enormous. Ranny might have destroyed every shred of love and respect she had for him but she would never have let the world know it. And she was counting on the new baby to steady him."

CLEVELAND EXPLAINS

"True, true. But I begin to wonder if we are not on the wrong track, after all, Mrs. Paige was unhappy, convinced, you tell me, of her husband's disloyalty, when a stranger in a strange land, as well. I wonder if she did not yield to the impulse of the moment and decide that the quickest way out of an unfeeling world was the best way? She may have caught the tassel in her mouth in her death struggle."

"Very well," he said. "We will let it go at that for the time being. Thank you for coming to me, Mr. Cleveland and you, too, Mrs. Phelps. I want a chance to think over all of this and then I expect there will be some more questions that I shall want you both to answer. Mrs. Phelps, there is nothing that you want to add, is there?" Mr. Cleveland's story is correct as far as you know?"

"Absolutely correct," answered that lady.

"Good-bye then," said Anderson, rising and extending his hand. "This has been a pretty tough day for you, Mr. Cleveland, and I sympathize with you more than I am able to show."

He shook hands with them both and motioned for MacNalley to show them out.

Then he turned to me. "I'm a detective," he said whimsically, "but no logician. You are. How did that yarn strike you?"

HIS FIRST LOVE

"Pretty straight, Andy," I admitted. "Cleveland had a long and distinguished career. He's not a woman's man by a long shot. I imagine the little girl hit him pretty hard—probably the first time in his life that anything like that ever happened to him. A friendship to her—deadly earnest to him. It all hangs together. But I don't understand about those cigarette butts."

"I'm just wondering," said Anderson slowly. "These quiet gestures are uncontrollable once they are aroused. Cleveland admits that he was half-crazed with jealousy. I wonder if he didn't come back here after he left Mrs. Phelps and try to talk to Mrs. Paige?"

"Why did he gag her?" I asked. "Possibly to make her listen to him. Then he accidentally killed her and got scared and strung her up."

"But if he was talking to her, he would have noticed that she lost consciousness—that he was strangling her. No, Andy, that's for me to believe. Cleveland is a gentlemen with many generations of gentlemen behind him. I doubt that his ancestors ever bring himself to lay a finger on a woman's body against her will, let alone hang her to a chandelier."

"Maybe you're right," mused the inspector. "Anyway I have no doubt but that we shall draw a line on these particular cigarettes, find out how they came to be in the basement. When we discover that we shall have gone a long way toward solving the mystery."

Ranny Paige came clean that same afternoon, but his story, instead of clearing up the mystery, actually only served to deepen it and to set us thinking along an altogether different line.

Versatile Pattern for You

By MARIAN MARTIN

You can create chic in several ways with a pattern as versatile as this one. In large view is sketched a stunning afternoon model with a high cowl neckline of contrast and moderately full sleeves joined to drop shoulders. Here for a more formal sort of frock, note the small view, with short flared sleeves and a flattering V neckline. The belt, tied in front, is part of the cleverly designed back bodice treatment. Effective both as to line and cut for crepe, or satin with bengaline or satin contrast.

Pattern 9848 may be ordered only in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 requires 4¼ yards 39 inch fabric and ⅝ yard contrasting.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for EACH MARIAN MARTIN pattern. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, PATTERN STYLE NUMBER and SIZE of each pattern.

Send your order to the Boston American Pattern Department, 232 W. 18th St., New York, N. Y.

here. I assume that you then returned to your house?"

"No," answered the lawyer, with some difficulty. "I have been expecting that question. I did not return home until dawn broke that fatal morning. I was very much upset and disturbed and I drove the larger part of the night. Sometimes I stopped for a while and brooded over the whole sorry business and sometimes I just drove, finding a certain relief in the rushing of the car and the cool wind."

"Now isn't it a fact that you returned to this very house again after you had left Mrs. Phelps?" pursued Anderson relentlessly.

Cleveland shook his head.

"You're wrong there," he declared. "The next time I saw her she was dead!"

"Then why did you park your car up there just off the Paige lane and why were you seen coming from this house about two o'clock in the morning?"

"I wasn't," replied Cleveland, with great finality. "My car was never parked where you mention at any time that night and the only time that I left this house was with Mrs. Phelps at about midnight."

"Very well," he said. "We will let it go at that for the time being. Thank you for coming to me, Mr. Cleveland and you, too, Mrs. Phelps. Tel-U-Grams by ART MOGER

Tel-U-Gram fans will find the entertainers to be identified on the Paramount movie cathedrals today. There, on the screens will be seen the actors and actresses to be identified in today's Tel-U-Gram.

Just write the names of the entertainers in the squares provided in the drawing and then mail in your solutions to the Tel-U-Gram Editor of the Boston Evening American, Boston, P. O. Box 2097.

That's all there is to the contest. The winners will get free tickets to the Paramount and Keney theaters.

COOK-COOS

By TED COOK

Chicago hotel, now in receivership, offers to let its creditors sleep out their bills—at regular rates.

This is a fine idea for American home owners. Why not board the mortgage company for a week, and call it square?

And farmers might cancel obligations to their bankers by entertaining the latter in some fitting fashion—such as taking them on an old-fashioned snipe hunting expedition.

From her wise men have soon departed—
The gal who stops what she has started.

* * *

"Good men are still going wrong," sighs Genevieve, the kitchen cynic. "And the wrong men are still going good."

(Lamar, Mo., Democrat.)

The Golden Rod Club held its regular monthly meeting, Thursday, at the home of Mrs. Amos Sage. The president, Mrs. Clarence Simmons, being absent, the vice-president, Mrs. W. B. Summers, presided. After the customary opening devotional service the roll call was responded to by eleven of the twenty members, each telling her favorite household task. Washing and cooking were the most favored.

"THIS IS ROMANCE"

(Address before Los Angeles Bar Association.)

"Today a man of forty is, in relation to his possible development and achievement, but one year of age." — Dr. Frederic P. Woellner of the University of California.

TO THE LONELY, DISCREET GENT

Personal ad from Saturday Review of Literature:

Lonely gentleman (from central N. Y.)
Be cautious as well as discreet!
Gals who insist upon talking just books
Go on with their gabble like babbling brooks;
They also are not recommended for looks—
But, oh, how those babies can eat!
It's none of our business—we merely try
To urge you to quickly retreat;
Gals who talk literature with a guy

Political Parasites Are Public Enemies

PUBLIC education in the State of Alabama is about to collapse under the strain of an OBSOLETE SYSTEM OF COUNTY AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT.

Unless financial assistance is forthcoming in the meantime, the State Superintendent of Education warned the Governor and the Legislature that practically all of Alabama's schools will be FORCED TO CLOSE BEFORE THE NEW YEAR IS TWO WEEKS OLD.

Instead of demanding that the Governor and the Legislature save public education in Alabama by modernizing the State's obsolete system of county and local government, the Alabama member of the Democratic National Committee appealed to President Roosevelt for Federal funds to keep open the public schools of that State.

IN his telegram to the President National Committeeman McCord says:

"THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS OF ALABAMA FOR LACK OF FUNDS ARE ABOUT TO CLOSE. To keep them open for the next semester we must borrow two million five hundred thousand dollars.

"On behalf of the people of my State I respectfully appeal to you to use your influence in helping us borrow this amount from our Government.

"We have six hundred thousand children enrolled in our public schools and I earnestly appeal to you to help us keep these children in school."

ALL OF THESE CHILDREN COULD BE KEPT IN SCHOOL and many other children in Alabama could be given free schooling if county and local politicians, who dominate the Alabama Legislature, would permit the REORGANIZATION OF COUNTY AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT WHICH HAS BEEN RECOMMENDED BY A COMMISSION APPOINTED BY THE GOVERNOR IN 1931.

This Commission, at a cost of $30,000, made a detailed study and survey of all governmental agencies within the State.

This survey showed how county and local government in Alabama could be simplified, how the standard of administration could be raised and its costs reduced.

Had the recommendations of this survey been carried out by the Legislature, as was done in North Carolina after a similar survey, Alabama would not be in the humiliating position today of appealing to the Federal Government for money with which to educate her 600,000 children.

For the Federal Government to make to Alabama at this time a loan or grant of two million five hundred thousand dollars would not be to keep open the public schools of the State, but to keep political parasites in office. It would simply mean that all the unnecessary county and local politicians would continue indefinitely to eat up the taxes of the people which OUGHT TO GO TO THE SUPPPORT OF PUBLIC SCHOOLS AND OTHER VITAL GOVERNMENTAL SERVICES.

Why should the people of the United States SUBSIDIZE SIXTY-SEVEN COUNTY GOVERNMENTS in the State of Alabama in order to save the public schools of that State from collapse?

IF the Federal Government subsidizes a system of county and local government in Alabama, which is a hand-me-down from the days of the ox cart, ox-cart government in other States will promptly demand a Federal subsidy TO PAY THE SALARIES AND THE WASTEFUL EXPENDITURE OF A HOARD OF USELESS POLITICAL PARASITES.

The best service that the Federal Government can render in this emergency to the State of Alabama is to notify the Governor and the Legislature that, UNTIL THEY CARRY OUT THE RECOMMENDATIONS OF THEIR OWN STATE COMMISSION for the abolition of ox-cart government in Alabama, Federal aid for public education would be futile and will not be available.

The Essence of Reflation

There is no mystery as to why the financial markets accepted so calmly President Roosevelt's budget message, reporting unparalleled peacetime outlays.

Essentially, the facts were already known.

The outside observer, informed about appropriations already made by Congress, could have roughly approached the figure presented by the Chief Executive.

Accordingly, the real core of the President's state paper consisted of his statement of financial policy and programs for the next two and a half years.

In a futile effort to block the liberal administration by stirring up anew the panic psychology, these obstructionists created fictions concerning the danger of unlimited expansion of the currency and unrestricted borrowing by the Treasury.

Of course, if there were no limits set, their predictions of financial ruin would have been worthy of consideration.

But now President Roosevelt has taken the ground from under the feet of the so-called "sound money" dogmatists by pledging his administration to a policy of quickly tapering off extraordinary federal expenditures after the "new deal" objectives of recovery have been reached.

Mr. Roosevelt, in other words, has relieved any academic fears of creditors of the United States government by promising orderly finance and in due course genuinely balanced budgets, followed by a policy of net debt reduction.

Thus it becomes apparent that there will be no occasion for unbridled use of the printing presses, which historically have been unleashed exclusively for the purpose of taking care of uncontrollable budgetary deficits.

In the fiscal year ending June 30 next, the President foresees a "cash" deficit, which of course will be reduced by offsetting assets, of seven thousand million dollars.

In the succeeding fiscal year, he pledges that the cash deficit will be reduced to two thousand million dollars.

In the following fiscal year, beginning July 1, 1935, Mr. Roosevelt pledges that total expenditures, ordinary and extraordinary alike, shall not be permitted to exceed current income of the United States government.

Thereafter, he pledges a net annual debt reduction.

Thus, in effect, he establishes the doctrine of balancing the budget in terms of a whole business cycle, rather than in terms of a single fiscal year.

Likewise, Mr. Roosevelt gives reality to the policy of reflation, which means that expansion of the currency and of the public debt shall be permitted to go so far—and no farther.

Mr. Roosevelt has thus already prepared public opinion for the period ahead when it will be the avowed policy of the administration to place brakes on inflation.

In doing this, the President makes the federal credit impregnable.

International Temptation

Once upon a time banks in this country had much trouble in settling their balances with each other.

At periods, heavy shipments of gold had to be made across the country, involving labor, expense and risk. The Federal Reserve System corrected this difficulty by arranging for member banks to deposit gold reserves at Washington. Thereafter, the banks could settle balances without moving an ounce of the precious metal. It was done by simple bookkeeping, transferring gold credits from one bank to the other.

Since gold has been retired out of reach, the memory is merely academic in interest, and would not occur at this time if it had not been for the report the other day of a bank robbery at Basle.

The World Bank is at Basle. And every so often some internationalist, perhaps taught by our Federal Reserve method, suggests that the nations solve the exchange problem by all depositing their gold in the World Bank and keeping books on it.

But the thought arises—if two robbers can enter a private bank at Basle and shoot the place up and escape with a hoard of money, why would a World Bank be a safe place for everybody's gold?

Suppose, for example, a warlike nation, gone suddenly militaristic in the heart of Europe, and sending its army to paralyze all possible foes by seizing the world's gold supply.

Things stranger than that have happened in history. And Alexander's sack of the Persian King's palace at Susa was just a glorified gold raid which flooded the Hellenic world with specie and altered ancient economy.

So perhaps, until we know more about an unbroken universal peace, the nations in general will continue to keep their gold—if they have any—at home rather than in Basle.

As It Should Be

Not only members of Congress, but loyal Americans everywhere are bitterly resentful of the conduct of foreign nations which, in distress, borrowed our money, and later accepted as a large part of the loans an outright gift; which promised by solemn compacts to repay the remaining minor parts of their debts; which have since had the effrontery to default on their just and acknowledged obligations, leaving the American taxpayer to hold the bag; which, furthermore, have imposed restrictive quotas and discriminatory tariffs against OUR merchandise, and which now want to invade OUR market with THEIR alien goods.

As we have said in these columns, there can be no trading, there can be no dealings with cheats and defaulters.

And the American people can drive this lesson home where it belongs by adhering to one good American rule:

NEW YORK, Jan. 11—They were dog fanciers, carinophiles, relating unusual capers of their pets in a corner of the Lotos Club. It was started by a dachshund owner who told of his four-year-old pet leaping suddenly into the air one day and dashing again and again into the stone wall of a garage. An hour later it died. A suicide.

O. O. McIntyre

An Albany lawyer had a coach dog that lived with his family 12 years. One summer it accompanied them to Atlantic City and became attached to a chair pusher, following him everywhere. Taken home, the dog vanished. Three months later it was found at the resort again, following the pusher.

A real estate man in Westchester owned a chow, friendly for years. All of a sudden it would go near no one, spending time in a nearby woods. It would come at intervals for food, put out for it, but only at night when all retired. This went on two years and then it returned as amiable as ever.

I told of a Boston that grew suddenly and amazingly savage toward the Turk proprietor of a souvenir shop in the Grand Central zone. Never before had he appeared ferocious. A few months later the headlines told of the shop-keeper's arrest for outrageous cruelty to dogs.

She is the middle-aged hat-checker in a shabby cellar cabaret in The Village, whither a quartet of us had gone in a dip of slumming. In the taxi uptown we commented on the Madonna beatitude of her smile. Every husband has seen it when his wife looks at their child first time. Other men have seen it from piled pillows in satiny alcoves delicately screened, in hospital wards and in honest nests built to shield their own. There is no difference. The same remembered smile in grandeur or muck.

ALL I KNOW

'Tis bitter cold for him who owns no muffler for his throat;
And never drifts the white snow down as winter settles in
But what I think 'tis bitter cold for him whose shoes are thin.

The world is full of bickering now and full of words the air
But wise men cannot talk away a poor man's bleak despair.
I do not know which way is best, the silver or the gold,
I only know who lacks a coat will find the winter cold.

But little of their logic do I understand or know,
I'm only sure of this as I look through the window pane:

Listen World!

By Elsie Robinson

THERE ARE, in the Bible, certain eight words of great wisdom—"BE STILL AND KNOW THAT I AM GOD!"

These words were written by King David for the ancient Hebrews. But we modern Americans have an even greater need of them, for our lives are filled with an even greater clamor and confusion which that old world never knew. A million amusements . . . a million distractions.

YET, LIKE MOSES AND ABRAHAM, DAVID AND SOLOMON, WE NEED TO HEAR THE STILL, SMALL VOICE OF GOD.

We may not call it God. We may call it Beauty or Wisdom.

Elsie Robinson

But whatever we name it, each one of us has a need of it . . . each heart has a cry which the harsh shout of the world can never answer . . . each bewildered brain listens for a Voice which alone can bring comfort and peace and strength.

But we will never hear that Voice unless we shut out the noise.

The bleat of our self pity . . . the hiss of envy . . . the bray of conceit . . . the bellow of hate . . . the whimper of fear . . . the snarl of pevishness . . . the mumble of suspicion . . . the snare of laziness . . . the snap of intolerance . . . the giggle and guggle of foolishness.

These are the voices that really drown out God . . . and the Voices of Beauty and Wisdom.

LET THE NOISE BE HUSHED WITHIN YOU, BIT BY BIT—LET THE DIN DIE AWAY UNTIL YOUR SPIRIT IS EMPTY . . . READY TO BE FILLED . . . WAITING TO BE FILLED.

And then softly, gently, the Voice will come.

From all sides it will come—

From everything you behold and everything you experience.

That Voice which runs like one long chord through all things and all life . . . through laughter and tears and sunsets and shins, through ploughed fields and budding trees and men bending over benches, through child-beds and graves and wedding feasts and labor conferences, through books and hammers and aeroplanes and loaves of new-made bread, through roses and hesped fruits and moonlight and sweat—

From all sides the Voice will come—

Quieting your confusion, comforting your pain, answering your ignorance—

Whispering: "I COME . . . BE NOT AFRAID . . . BE STILL AND KNOW THAT I AM GOD!"

Civil Service Commission Needs Reforming

By James T. Williams, Jr.

If the Roosevelt administration seriously intends to extend the merit system of appointments to the federal service, it will begin with the U. S. civil service commission.

The purpose of this agency, as declared by Congress in the civil service act of Jan. 16, 1883, is "to regulate and improve the civil service of the United States." This commission, as established by Congress, consists of three commissioners, "not more than two of whom shall be adherents of the same political party."

It has been the practice of most Presidents to appoint to this commission leading citizens actively identified with the cause of civil service reform. Civil service commissioner was the first federal office held by Theodore Roosevelt and some of his best work then and later was in support of the merit system of appointments to the public service—federal, state and local.

President Hoover rewarded one of his political supporters by making him chairman of the Civil Service Commission. And this bad example has yet to be abandoned by the Roosevelt administration.

Instead of reorganizing the Civil Service Commission and appointing leaders in the cause of civil service reform to take charge of its work, the Roosevelt administration selected an ex-mayor of a Western State and a national committee woman of a Southern State to fill the two Democratic vacancies on his commission.

REORGANIZE AGENCY

By the recent death of the Republican member of the commission, the late George R. Wales, another vacancy has been created and the way in which it is filled will put the sincerity of the administration's professions in regard to civil service reform to another test.

If the two Democratic politicians now members of the commission are joined by a Republican politician, "lame duck" or Roosevelt supporter with as little experience in civil service reform work as stands to the credit of the two Democratic commissioners, Congress might as well abolish the agency.

In fact, the United States civil service commission ought to be abolished unless it is swiftly reorganized and manned as it should be—by three commissioners who whose work for civil service reform, whose faith in the cause, whose leadership in its support, commands the confidence of the country and the respect of the executive, legislative and judicial branches of the federal government.

Thus far the merit system has had rough sledding under this administration. The President has been able to protect the Tennessee Valley Authority, the Civilian Conservation Corps, the War and Navy Departments, and several important divisions in the Department of Justice from the raids of the spoilsmen.

But other departments of the government have been less fortunate. The Department of Commerce is a favorite picnic ground for the spoilsmen, and they are reaching out in many directions to seize or keep control of offices that ought long ago to have been given the protection of the classified service.

NEFARIOUS SYSTEM

These offices include first, second and third-class postmasterships in the Post Office Department. Only fourth class postmasterships are now under the classified service and, in some cases, these have not been safeguarded as the law requires.

Under the Treasury Department collectors of customs, collectors of internal revenue and deputy collectors are still appointed by political recommendations. So also are the marshals and many other court officials. Until all these are placed under the classified service they will continue to be used by the spoilsmen of politics to reward their political followers. This nefarious system adds to the burden of the taxpayers. It lowers the efficiency of the federal service. It tightens the grip of county and local politicians on the federal administration. It plagues senators and representatives in Congress who become errand boys for the spoilsmen when they ought to be legislators for the nation.

If President Roosevelt is really going to wage warfare against the spoilsmen of politics and apply "the new deal" to the federal service, he will begin by reorganizing the United States Civil Service Commission in order that the cause of civil service reform may have the support of public opinion, of which every citizen who believes in the merit system can be proud.

Human Side of the News; Romance of Silver

By Edwin C. Hill

After many years silver is coming back into its own. One of the final decrees issued by President Roosevelt in the long series of brilliant and forthright strokes which made the final three-quarters of 1933 so electrified, was the virtual remonetization of silver on a basis of one to fifty-three as compared with gold.

The scratching of the President's pen across the parchment of that decree stirred the old ghost towns of the silver mining centers of the West back to active life. The old mining towns that made millions over night, back in the sixties and seventies, ghost towns for many years, are filled up again as old claims are combed over and new ones opened up. The land that Mark Twain delighted to write about, that poured the tons of Midas into the pockets of Flood, Fair, O'Brien and Mackay, hums once more to the chorus of jolly miners at the thumping explosions of giant powder.

Even old Central City, with its romantic history, may again come into its own. In Central City bloomed the first culture of Nevada territory. It had the first theater and the first grand opera house. Booth played there and Adelina Patti soared her golden notes. Booted miners stamped applause and showered gold coin upon the stage.

President Grant made two visits to Central City, walking over solid silver bricks from his carriage to his hotel. George M. Pullman got his start there, and the inspiration also for the Pullman berth. A neat man, detesting dirt and disorder, Pullman was annoyed when miners plumped themselves down upon the clean blankets of his fastidiously made bed. So he put hinges on the bunk and swung it up against the wall of his cabin, and there was the first Pullman berth, the simple idea which made millions for George M. Pullman and revolutionized railway travel the world over.

Central City is coming alive, though in tune with modern times. Gone are the two-gun men and the desperadoes. Gone are the pallid gamblers in their ministerial black; the single diamond blazing in their white shirt fronts. Gone are the dance halls and the red-stockinged girls, the buckskin-clad fur traders, the red-shirted miners and the inferior deputy sheriffs. But life springs again wherever gold or silver are found. From the pallid Central City, romantic and fascinating symbol of the old West, may again play its part in the stirring drama of the new day and the New Deal.

The rush and hurry of modern life is blamed by Dr. Irving S. Cutter, of Northwestern University Medical School, for man's failure to live longer than he does. "We have forgotten how to rest," says Dr. Cutter, "and we have not learned how to play. Our holidays are too infrequent, and our pastimes often are more harmful, than healthful."

The average length of life in the United States has risen from 35 years in 1880 to 54 years for a man, and to 56 years for a woman. But length of life has increased only a fraction over the age of 60, and shows a decrease in the highest ages.
